Hit by Propeller Of Runaway Craft

One Boy Escapes Elk Lake Tragedy

By PETE LOUDON

A runaway float plane at Elk Lake Monday night killed one of two boys who started the engine while playing with the controls.

He died instantly, the propeller severing his body below the shoulders.

An inquest will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at McCall Brothers funeral chapel.

The second boy, barely escaping the whirling blades, floundered in the lake for 10 minutes. Police took him to hospital, speechless with shock.

Dead is John Frederick Morrison, 15, of 620 Huxley.

The horrified survivor, Robert Turnbull, 16, of 3843 Rowland, was returned to his home after treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

His shock was reflected throughout Victoria today.

PIECED TOGETHER

From his account of the tragedy, and the stories told by two eye-witnesses who saw the accident from across the lake, police deduce the following:

John and Robert had been working all day at a berry farm. Returning home at about 5:45 p.m. they skirted the west shore of Elk Lake.

They saw the plane, moored about 25 feet from shore near a float recently installed by the newly-formed Victoria Float-Plane Owners' Association.

A flat-bottom skiff, said to belong to a Bert Rogers, was tied to the float.

Robert told police: "We decided to have a look inside the plane."

He said it was open.

IN THE COCKPIT

(Later, plane-owner Victor Dawson, local electrical contractor, said the plane was locked. "I have witnesses to that.")

Robert got inside the two-seater aircraft. John was partly in the cockpit, trying to hold the boat at the same time.

"We were touching everything," the police quoted Robert. Without any warning, the plane started, he told them.

John climbed from the plane on one side, apparently trying to get into the boat.

Robert jumped out the other side and swam for shore. He did not see what happened to John. He never saw him again.

The plane, with throttle apparently wide open, circled wildly, tugging against its mooring line. Twice it charged on Robert as he swam. Once it pinned him under its pontoons.

TREES MINCED

The plane plunged and dipped, circling three times. It scooped the small skiff on top of its pontoons. One bite of the propeller ate a section out of the after thwart. Then it broke loose and charged into the shoreline brush, mincing trees and bushes into pulp.

When police arrived, the plane was still sawing into the trees. The boat was across the pontoons.

B.C. Deal Set With Ottawa On Road Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has reached "complete agreement in substance" with British Columbia and Saskatchewan on construction of access roads to resource areas, Northern Affairs and Resources Minister Hamilton said today.

Mr. Hamilton gave the information to the Commons committee on mines, forests and waters.

He said he has formally advised the two provinces that they can go ahead with their programs under joint federal participation.

Plane Owner 'Thanks God' It Stayed Down

The distraught owner of a float plane which ran amok on Elk Lake thanked God today it didn't take off.

"It was a miracle the plane didn't take off and crash across the lake on swimmers or homes," said Victor Dawson, Sluggert Road, Central Saanich electrical contractor.

"At that speed, she'd have been off the water in 100 yards," he added. Luckily, the thin mooring line held. The plane, after striking a boy dead, nosed into the treed lakeside, killing its engine in a flurry of chips and sawdust.

Mr. Dawson said he was leading a sing-song at a Rotary meeting when police informed him two boys had started his plane, and one had been killed by the propeller. Police had searched over three hours for Mr. Dawson.

The owner was puzzled how untrained youths could start the plane. The motor was 24-hours cold. Fine priming adjustments would be necessary.

"You'd have to put a 40-pound pull on the starter."

He said his plane was locked, but a window was apparently "jimmied."

There were warning signs to trespassers on both the plane and a nearby tree. The seat of a boat used by the boys also bore notice to "keep away."

"But I'd rather give them the airplane than see something like this happen," added Mr. Dawson. He is a member-director of the Victoria Float-Plane Owners' Association. His plane is an Aeronca sedan. He flew it here from Red Lake, Ont., in March.

Mr. Dawson said he appreciated boys' curiosity about planes.

"I've often taken youngsters up, when they have their parents' written permission."

Damage to the plane may go as high as $1,000. The engine will have to be removed before it can be assessed.

Hot Dispute Over Planes On Elk Lake

Monday's tragic death of a 16-year-old boy in the spinning propeller of a float plane on Elk Lake came in the midst of a months-long argument between City Hall and the owner of the aircraft.

Only hours before the freak accident, the city legal department mailed a letter to the Department of Transport as part of an intensive study to determine how much control the city has over the lake.

The argument began April 21 when Victor Dawson, president of the Victoria Float-Plane Owners' Association, headed a delegation that asked Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee for permission to establish a non-commercial float plane base on Elk Lake.

EDGELow ALONE

The committee turned down the application after strong objections were taken by Saanich councillors George Chatterton and George Austin that aircraft would menace swimmers in the lake. Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was the only committee member.

22 RESCUED FROM PLANE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil

(UPI)—The air ministry announced that all 22 persons were rescued from an Argentine State Airlines plane that crashed into the Atlantic near Rio today.

The plane, a DC-6, went into the sea around 11:30 a.m. some 70 miles southwest of here.

Sommers Facing 22nd Day of Trial

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Crown began presenting more documentary evidence today in its 38-count bribery-conspiracy case involving former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers and others.

Special prosecutor Victor Dryer had George Davenport, former accountant with C. D. Schultz Company, called to the stand. He then presented for Davenport's identification various ledger books, vouchers, Schultz Company cheques for varying amounts and other records of the timber engineering firm.

Davenport, who left the Schultz firm in March, 1955, and now is secretary-treasurer of Bralorne Mines, took the box in the 22nd day of the trial.

The day marked the end of testimony by the Crown's chief witness, Charles Eversfield, who was excused after appearing briefly for his 12th day. The Crown's case is mainly built on documents Eversfield took from the files of Pacific Coast Services Limited when he quit his bookkeeper's job there in March, 1955.

The trial resumed after a brief adjournment Monday because of the illness of one of three

Beaudoin Gets Divorce

RENO, Nev. (CP)—Rene Beaudoin, former Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, was granted a divorce from his wife here today.

The way them Algerian insurgents is talkin' now, they'd like to see all de Gaulle divided in three parts.

Algeria 'Rebels' Threaten Split With de Gaulle

PARIS (CP)—French insurgents in Algeria threatened a break with Premier Charles de Gaulle today as he strove to untangle France from a snarl of domestic and foreign problems.

A communique from the All Algeria Committee of Public Safety opposed his plan for local elections in Algeria within a month and demanded a house-cleaning of political parties in France.

The communique was met with official silence here, but it was unofficially reported to have stirred up a deep suspicion that the Algerian right-wingers want nothing less than one-party rule in France.

The committee—formed after the May 13 revolt in Algiers—still holds extensive power in the French North African colony despite de Gaulle's notice to its leaders to relinquish their role.

De Gaulle today outlined his plans for stabilizing the French economy in separate talks with union leaders and employers.

The general told a delegation from the Catholic Trade Union Federation he wants labor given legislative and not merely consultative powers.

De Gaulle also met a delegation from the powerful French Employers' Association under President Georges Villiers.

Villiers said he told the premier: "We believe in expansion. It may have to be a little slower than in the past as we have been growing too fast."

Ike Offers Atom Meet On July 1

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower proposed today to Soviet Premier Khrushchev that technical talks begin July 1 in Geneva on methods of policing any possible future ban on nuclear tests.

The White House made public a letter from the president stating the Swiss government has agreed to the Geneva site, which Eisenhower said would be preferable to Moscow from the U.S. viewpoint.

Khrushchev in agreeing to such talks had suggested they be held in his own capital.

Eisenhower told the Russian premier the U.S. would not object to the inclusion of experts from Czechoslovakia and Poland on Russia's side.

The Western powers participating, he said, would be the United Kingdom, France, the U.S. and possibly other countries.

Eisenhower noted Khrushchev has indicated Russia would not object to the inclusion of additional Western nations having experts in nuclear test detection.

With respect to neutrals, Eisenhower told the Russian premier "we have no objection in principle to their joining later in the discussions if it is agreed during the course of the talks that this is necessary or useful."

INDIA TO JOIN IN?

That might let such countries as India into the talks.

Eisenhower suggested provision should be made for the talks to continue slightly longer than the three or four weeks which Khrushchev had suggested earlier in the Eisenhower-Khrushchev exchange.

This might be advisable to resolve the complex technical questions involved, Eisenhower said.

The presidential letter said: "These talks would be undertaken without commitment as to the final decision on the relationship of nuclear test suspension to other more important disarmament measures I have proposed."

British Prime Minister Macmillan, here to confer with Eisenhower, had been informed of the contents of the reply.

Sandys Urges
New Arms Bid
Through UN

LONDON (UPI)—Britain today proposed a new try at breaking the East-West disarmament deadlock through establishment of a powerful "world security authority" under the United Nations.

Defence Minister Duncan Sandys spelled out the idea in Parliament.

Sandys suggested that East and West go back to the UN charter and start from there in accepting a "general agreement for the prevention of war."

The minister said the end of the manned bomber is not yet in sight. Russia was reported to have between 1,500 and 1,700 bombers.

Many were powerful enough to fly from Russia to Canada and drop their loads and return. Due to the rigidity of the intercontinental guided missile it would be many years, he believed, before Russia could depend exclusively on that weapon.

A balance of a division had been kept in Canada. Originally the plan was to hold it in reserve to be conveyed to Europe immediately after the start of the next war.

But with Russia having a known fleet of 500 or more submarines, some equipped to fire nuclear weapons inland and a few believed to be driven by atomic power, the NATO naval authorities had revised their strategy. Convoys of the Canadian division through such a fleet of submarines would be too great a risk.

The plan to move the Canadians overseas has now been "downgraded." They will be held here as a reserve ready to be moved into action later and available for use in North America if necessary.

Meanwhile, the balance of the division was necessary in Canada to be used to rotate Canadian forces now stationed in Europe as part of Canada's contribution to NATO.

This continent would not escape attack in the event of another world war, Gen. Pearkes

U.S. Proposes Three Attempts

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson, director of air research and development command, said today that the U.S. Air Force will "shoot for the Moon" in August.

Gen. Anderson said a press conference on the air force with the three "lunar probes" this year. The others are scheduled for September and October, he added.

He declined to disclose the size or weight of the payload the air force hopes to deliver. It will not be instrumented and will be intended simply to crash on the moon, he said, giving "some indication" of its arrival.

Three-stage rockets whose main power plants at takeoff will be modified Thor missiles will propel the projectiles over a 278,000-mile course to the moon in 2 1/2 days, Anderson said.

The vehicles will be modification of military missiles, he added.

The Thor is a 1,500-mile-range weapon. At least 13 have been test fired and of these at least five have been successful.

Anderson said that even if the rockets miss the moon, they will become "real interesting scientific satellites" because their elliptical orbits will carry them far out into space and possibly around the moon and earth in a sort of figure eight.

However the defence department claimed later it has the say on when to shoot for the moon, and it hasn't set any final dates.

'To Peace by Easy Steps' Mac's Aim

BALTIMORE (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan called today for a start toward building world peace through a "little by little" approach to discarding all big weapons—atomic and others.

Macmillan addressed commencement exercises at Johns Hopkins University where he and President Eisenhower were given honorary degrees by the school.

Macmillan said the Western alliance has served well and must be continued as a shield against Communist aggression.

"But I am not without hope," he said, "that we may succeed little by little, if not all at once, in making some progress toward the relaxation of tensions in the world."

Macmillan said it would be foolish to expect any summit meeting to bridge the gap between East and West.

But he said it can be done "only if both sides are willing—we on our side certainly are willing."

Macmillan said both the United States and Britain have rightly held that a beginning can be made in controlled disarmament of both nuclear and conventional weapons.

"Control is really the essence," the British prime minister said.

URGES FREE TRADE

"Once both sides agree to experiment in this we shall have really made a start. We will have established a beginning of confidence. And confidence means peace."

Macmillan also called for aid to underdeveloped countries both in developing their own resources and in assuring them

Ship Talks Still On

OTTAWA (CP)—Negotiations have not broken down in the West Coast strike tying up CPR vessels operating between Vancouver Island and the mainland, acting labor minister Fairclough said today.

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes today gave a clear indication that the government will order the supersonic Arrow into full production.

He said before the Commons' estimates committee that the manned bomber will be used "for a long time to come." The Arrow, being developed by Avro Aircraft Limited, Malton, Ont., is designed as a bomber interceptor.

For "many years yet" it is expected the main threat to North America would come from manned or un-manned bombers.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has reached "complete agreement in substance" with British Columbia and Saskatchewan on construction of access roads to resource areas, Northern Affairs and Resources Minister Hamilton said today.

Mr. Hamilton gave the information to the Commons committee on mines, forests and waters.

He said he has formally advised the two provinces that they can go ahead with their programs under joint federal participation.

Saanich constable Bob Kirby found Robert.

"He had apparently swum out again after the struggle to avoid the plane. He must have been in the water 10 minutes and was considerably north of the plane when he came out. He was suffering from shock and couldn't talk."

"I HEARD IT"

Across the north arm of the lake, two schoolboys watched the tragedy without realizing its seriousness.

Frank Gibbons, 18, of 556 Brookleigh, was doing his homework three-quarters of a mile from the plane when "I heard it rev up..."

He went outside to watch the plane take off, he said.

"It was circling counter-clockwise, in circles 150 feet in diameter, and appeared definitely out of control."

It started a fourth circle, "... then it hit the boat. There was a shower of reddish-brown color which almost obliterated the plane—then it went round again, straightened out and went into the shore, and continued running there for 15 minutes."

THOUGHT IT WAS FIRE

"I thought he was on fire. I went and got my car. I saw police cars and knew someone had reported it. I told police what I'd seen and took them to Mr. Leckie's home (Ernest Leckie, 535 Brookleigh), who has a powerboat. His son and an officer went over in the boat and tried to shut the engine off."

The engine stalled of its own accord as it chewed into a heavy tree branch.

Robert "Butch" Cleland, 15, of 5020 Westleigh, was collecting on his paper route, also across the lake from the plane.

"I saw them move it so it faced out. I thought it was going to take off and, thought, 'I'd watch it.'"

"They started the engine up and it sounded full till right away. It started going in circles. Then I saw the shower of red... I got on my bike and rode over here right away."

"I was the first one here. The engine was still running and the plane was advancing slowly into the bush. I saw the body. I was just going to get the police. I got up the road and saw two police cars coming."

MANY MORE CALLS
Constables Kirby and Ted Owens were first to arrive. They couldn't get near the plane until it stopped itself. They said numerous anonymous calls were received by the police, the first at 6:05 p.m.

After rushing Robert to hospital, Saanich police set about the task of recovering the body of the dead boy. Grappling hooks and lamps were unsuccessful throughout the night.

Today, RCN skin divers assisted.

Mother of the dead boy, Mrs. Flora Morrison, collapsed when police brought her news of the tragedy.

"If you have any children," she sobbed, "take care of them while they are in their teens. They are very hard to keep track of..."

John, a student at McKenzie Ave. School until he started work recently, would have been 16 in October.

HERO OF RESCUE
There are six surviving brothers and sisters: Mrs. Herbert Barker; Herbert, Jimmy at home; Alan Morrison of Kemp Road, Sooke; Mrs. R. W. Davis of Vancouver, and Mrs. Joan McGraw of Langford.

Robert Turnbull was in the news last year when he helped rescue a boy from the Gorge. On June 19, 1957, he was one of three boys who rescued David Harvey, 18, 318 Uganda, who was almost drowned when he fell into the Gorge near the bridge at Tillicum Road.

Robert attended S. J. Willis School until just over a year ago.

1,726 Register For Grade One

Some 1,726 Greater Victoria children have been registered for Grade One classes this fall, school inspector John Gough said today.

In addition, 1,069 children have been registered for entry into nine kindergarten classes the Greater Victoria School Board hopes will be available this year.

Mr. Gough said current attendance in Grade One classes is 2,006 and "we expect to approach that figure when all the registrations for the fall are in."

He added that all parents who intend to enter their children in the school system for the first time this year should fill out registration forms immediately at the nearest elementary school.

The Royal Canadian Navy has been authorized to place orders for six new anti-submarine destroyers, instead of the four announced earlier.

The announcement was made at Ottawa today by George R. Pearkes, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, and welcomed here by shipbuilders who expressed hopes at least two of the six would come to Island yards.

Mr. Pearkes said the first keel in the new program would be laid this fall, but it was not decided which Canadian shipyard would be given the job.

Local shipbuilders said that, if contracts were awarded here, benefit in terms of jobs would not be felt for at least a year.

Meanwhile a spokesman for Yarrows Ltd. said 100 men were being laid off today on a temporary basis.

Layoff is necessary because of re-evaluation of the refit work being carried out on the coastal escort Winnipeg, contract for which was awarded several months ago to help keep the yard's work force together.

It is hoped the men will be recalled within a short time.

Yarrows work force now stands at about 170.

pointed out. The modern submarine which the Russians had in large quantity were capable of cruising for long periods and could be stationed offshore to launch nuclear missiles against cities that were inland or on the shore.

GRAVE THREAT

The role of the Canadian Navy had been also switched. No longer was the emphasis on convoy duty, but on hunting out and destroying submarine packs, the minister said.

"One of the most important tasks confronting the NATO commanders will be to prevent the emergence of the Russian submarines into the Atlantic Ocean. Great importance is attached to maintaining effective control between Greenland and Iceland and between Iceland and Norway," he added.

The submarines constituted a grave threat to NATO convoys and surface warships but also posed a threat against Canadian and United States shores, he stressed.

The Royal Canadian Navy after it has served its role of hunting out and destroying submarines in the initial phases of the war will convert to the role of escort duty after the nuclear battles have been won, the minister said.

ber favoring the application, arguing that the base should be allowed at least for the winter months.

Three days later city council confirmed the committee's rejection of the application, over the protests of Ald. Edgelow.

Mr. Dawson, owner of the death craft, informed City Hall May 26 that the association intended to go ahead and use the lake anyway, operating from privately-owned frontage.

(The city owns only 90 per cent of the lake frontage.)

"Eik Lake is presently represented on the international air maps of the world as an unrestricted area and it therefore is open to all pilots," Mr. Dawson wrote.

"Since your council has indicated through its reply that it is unable to co-operate in making available a portion of the city-owned property of the lake for this purpose, we are presently preparing for use a piece of property on the west side, clear of all obstructions."

STILL UNDER STUDY

The city legal department was instructed to make a thorough investigation of the city's powers over use of the lake when Mr. Dawson's letter was received. The subject is still under study.

Mayor Percy Scourrah and Ald. M. H. Mooney, chairman of the beaches and parks committee, both indicated today the matter was up to the department of transport.

But Coun. Chatterton called upon the people of Saanich for united action to stop Eik Lake from being used by aircraft or speedboats.

Unless they are controlled, "they will, with time, take over the lake and there will be more accidents with the area losing its recreational value," he said.

Mayor Scourrah said council had dealt with the situation as far as it could but "we can't control it. It's my understanding that it comes under the transport department."

Ald. Mooney said the D.O.T. "is the group that will have the final say on whether aircraft can be barred from the lake."

"I don't think council can discuss it until we have all the facts regarding the legality of aircraft using the lake."

Bombs Fly in Beirut

A SURVIVOR IN THE RUINS

TORONTO (CP)—An elderly woman was led from her blast-shattered Bathurst Street apartment Monday night muttering: "Oh, my poor..."

Rescuers couldn't make out the name she was saying and at first feared a visitor was trapped in the ruins.

When the woman recovered from shock she told them she was worried about her pet canary.

A few hours later a digger searching for missing apartment dwellers uncovered a bird cage, twisted and crushed under the debris.

In it covered the woman's canary—dusty but unharmed.

One Dead as Block Blows Up

TORONTO (CP)—A violent explosion, knifed upwards from a basement boiler room and blew out the side of a four-storey brick apartment building on northend Bathurst Street Monday night.

One torn body was recovered from the rubble today after an all-night search by workers who feared at one time that eight persons were trapped in the massive tangle of bricks, mortar and shattered furnishings.

John Armstrong, 53, superintendent of the 30-year-old building at 1600 Bathurst Street, north of St. Clair Avenue, was found dead under a mound of rubble in his basement dwelling. Just before the body was recovered police located Mrs. M. McGee and student Len Bartlett, the last of seven persons earlier believed to be in the ruins.

Firemen and steel-helmeted construction crews continued to dig out the wreckage in case visitors to the building had been caught by the blast, which collapsed sections of all four floors.

Deputy Police Chief Joe Thurston, in charge of the search, said diggers uncovered a ripped-open furnace boiler which appeared to have been the origin of the terrific explosion.

Owner William Jebelton, who valued the building at $250,000, said it will have to be demolished.

Despite the heavy damage there were few injuries to occupants. Mrs. Mabel Vicary, 57, Mrs. Ella Aldridge, 72, and Robert Veitch, 71, were treated at hospital for shock, cuts and bruises.

Police said 39 of the building's 48 occupants were in their apartments when the blast roared through the floors, peeling off most of the south wall.

One official said an attempt may have been made to test the boiler without water in the heating system. Opening a valve to put water in the system could have resulted in cold water entering the hot boiler—the recipe for a giant explosion.

Day-Long Debate On Water Pollution

MIKHAIL SUSLOV
... on way out?

OTTAWA—House debate meandering through the flotsam and jetsam of water pollution has agreed on the problem's urgency.

Day-long debate Monday found all-party agreement with the motives behind a resolution introduced by Eric Stefanson (PC, Selkirk) to have the government consider making pollution offences punishable under criminal law.

But while there were, unofficial hints that the government may have some anti-pollution legislation up its sleeve, the resolution was talked out. Most speakers said they felt the measure needed broadening to protect health, game and natural beauty.

The anti-pollution resolution was along the same lines as a measure sponsored by Prime Minister Diefenbaker when an opposition member, Mr. Stefanson quoted from his speeches on the subject.

Drastic Action Called For

One hint to possible government thinking came when Richard A. Bell (PC, Carleton) called the problem a "necessity for decisive, yes, drastic action."

R. P. Vivian (PC, Durham), a former Ontario health minister, said industrial and domestic pollution of lakes and rivers was considered an urgent problem in 1913. It could be imagined how much greater the need is today considering Canada's expanded industry and population.

Mr. Bell said the country could not afford pollution and it should be solved by "research, Dominion-provincial, municipal and industrial co-operation and by appropriate penalties."

Final Wheat Board Payment

Trade Minister Churchill announced final Canadian wheat board payments averaging 6.9 cents a bushel on prairie wheat delivered in the 1956-57 crop year.

A surplus of more than $25,000,000 will be distributed shortly, he said, and the payment will mean a final price of $1.58 for No. 1 Northern. That is the second lowest price in the 12 years since the end of the Second World War.

The generally lower returns were attributed to international price reductions and poor 1956 harvest weather which caused grain deterioration. The wheat board's last annual report noted the difficulty imposed by quantities of lower-grade wheat for the 1956-57 period.

The government Monday reintroduced a bill amending the Indian Act which would make it impossible for Indians or their descendants who accepted half-breed lands or money scrip to be stricken from the rolls.

Acting Citizenship Minister Fulton introduced the bill in the last Parliament but calling of the March 31 general election precluded dealing with it.

Citizenship Minister Fairclough brought the same bill back to the House Monday. There was no discussion and the bill was given first reading.

Indians involved under terms of the bill accepted half-breed lands or scrip instead of electing to live on Indian reserves. Many

Lupsi Kupsi Sewer Contract Junked By Vancouver Firm

PORT ALBERT, (CP)—The contractors for a portion of the Lupsi Kupsi sewer project here are withdrawing from their contract, city council learned Monday night.

Craig and Ralston Limited of Vancouver, who earlier in the year withdrew equipment after running into difficulties in laying mains in tide flats west of the Somass River, notified council officially that they intend to abandon the project.

Reporting on a committee meeting held before the regular council meeting, Mayor Loran Jordan said the city is protected by the company's bond and "more than likely the job will be finished by another contractor."

Drifter Convicted

VANCOUVER (CP)—The first Vancouver-area man charged under new small boat regulations with impaired boating, Alfred McMullen, 29, was convicted in police court Monday and fined $100. Prosecutor Bruce Harvey told the court the North Vancouver man was found drifting in his boat on Burrard Inlet Saturday night.

The first mental hospital in North America was founded at Quebec in 1714 by Bishop Jean St. Valier.

Do Tin Miners Get Pimples?

Because Cornish tin miners appeared to avoid skin blemishes, British chemists suggested the use of tin in treating Bofis, Acne, Pimples.

Now convenient, tasteless tablets containing 42.5% metallic tin are available under the brand name "Tinoxid." Rapid, satisfactory results are claimed for this inexpensive treatment.

Tinoxid Tablets are sold without prescription at all drug stores, $1.00.

Khrushchev Clears Pathway For Purge of Chief Rival

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Signs from Moscow indicate that Nikita Khrushchev may have pulled the rug out from under his chief Kremlin rival, Mikhail Suslov.

If so, it could mean the beginning of a move to purge Suslov. Suslov is a secretary of the Soviet Communist party's central committee, outranked only by First Secretary Khrushchev himself. He also is a member of the presidium of the central committee, the group of leading committee members which wields the real power.

Until at least recently he headed all the propaganda and cultural work of the Kremlin, was a leading party theoretician and had charge of the Kremlin's relations with foreign Communist parties.

Civilian A-Bomb To Clear Harbor Studied by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States may use atomic blasts to dig a harbor north of the Arctic Circle in Alaska, the Atomic Energy Commission announced Monday.

Survey parties will examine the site, between Cape Seppings and Cape Thompson, this summer to decide if the project can be carried out. One purpose will be to make sure the venture would be safe for persons within and outside the immediate area and for fish and wildlife.

Both Canada and the Soviet Union have been informed of the plan, the AEC said.

The signs that Suslov may be on the way out are too clear to be missed:

1. He has been absent from public appearances of the Kremlin leadership since May 16.

2. Particularly important was Suslov's absence from the recent Communist summit meeting, indicating that he has been removed from his former task of conducting relations with foreign Communist parties.

3. On May 17 it became known that the head of the central committee's section on propaganda and agitation, F. V. Konstantinov, had been replaced by L. F. Ilyichov. Since this was the key central committee section under Suslov and Konstantinov was Suslov's protégé, this indicated a fall in Suslov's authority.

4. Khrushchev, speaking in Bulgaria June 3, made an all-out attack on theoreticians and an equally vigorous defence of the practical politicians. Ostensibly the vitriolic condemnation of empty theoreticians was directed at President Tito of Yugoslavia. But the real target may have been Suslov, the theoretician, as contrasted with Khrushchev, the practical politician.

5. The central committee June 8 took the seemingly unnecessary step of rehabilitating the already rehabilitated leading composers—Dmitri Shostakovich, Aram Khachaturian and others—who were attacked as formalists in February, 1948. This may well be a veiled attack on Suslov, since Suslov under Andrei Zhdanov was largely responsible in 1948 for the implementation of Stalin's policy of putting Soviet creative artists in a steel vise of Communist party control.

Family of 5 Wiped Out In Car Crash

NORTH STAR, Alta. (CP)—An airman, his wife, child and parents were killed Monday when their small European car and a one-ton truck slammed head-on near this community 350 miles north of Edmonton.

Killed were LAC Donald Morin, 30, stationed at Claresholm, Alta., his 20-year-old wife, their 2½-year-old daughter, Linda, and his parents, John Baptiste Morin, and Mrs. Della Morin, both 65. The family's home was at Fairview, Alta.

Morin's car struck a truck driven by 16-year-old Marvin Thiboutet of Deadwood, Alta.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain
And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own homes without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed, convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

The Voice of Britain

PRIME MINISTER MACMILLAN of Britain who, like Sir Winston Churchill, is the son of an American mother, has evidently made a profound impression upon the United States.

His speech last weekend at Greencastle, Indiana, "must rank" with Churchill's famous speech at Fulton as a powerful appeal for trans-Atlantic unity. The unity in defence, for which Churchill appealed at Fulton, was quickly achieved. But as Mr. Macmillan says, the political and economic unity needed to sustain any successful defence has not yet been achieved. Thus the primary task of free world statesmanship, he adds, is to attain that unity at a time when Russia is advancing not by force of arms but by successful economic penetration.

There are too many barriers of trade and money, Mr. Macmillan argues, between the nations of the free world. These barriers grew up in an earlier time and under circumstances that no longer exist. They are not only an anachronism but a grave danger in the present age of a Western Alliance struggling with communism, but divided in its counsels, its commercial policies and its currencies.

With a striking appeal to history, which every American will understand, Mr. Macmillan recalls that the Thirteen Colonies were once weak and divided but they grew into the world's strongest nation by increasing co-operation in their daily lives.

So, he believes, the nations of the free world must grow together in framing joint policies far beyond the needs of military defence. They must not avoid but should seek interdependence wherein prosperity and strength for all will be found. "We cannot afford," says the British Prime Minister, "to think parochially."

At present too many men in Washington, London, Ottawa and elsewhere are thinking parochially. The campaign to erect still higher barriers in the stream of world trade and thus by mistaken policies to aid Russia's advance is flowing strongly everywhere. It clearly alarms Mr. Macmillan and he warns the American people bluntly against it as Churchill warned them at Fulton against military isolation. Will that warning be heeded in time not only in the United States but in other free nations?

Mr. Diefenbaker evidently was thinking of the same things when he spoke at Middleton, Conn., while Mr. Macmillan was speaking in Indiana. The tone rather than the words of Mr. Diefenbaker's speech was significant. He seems to have advanced a long way from the easy assumption of last summer that Canada somehow can solve its economic problems by a purely negative and restricted policy of diverting its trade from the United States.

Instead, Mr. Diefenbaker like Mr. Macmillan, speaks for the understanding and the co-operation of the United States to reduce Canada's present huge unfavorable trade balance in the American market. In virtually the same words often used by Mr. Pearson, the Prime Minister says that collaboration in North American defence is not enough. There must be concerted policies also in business. There must be consultations to avoid policies by which one partner in the free world alliance carelessly and often thoughtlessly injures another partner.

To this end Mr. Diefenbaker proposes two constructive steps. He accepts for Canada the proposal advocated in the recent report of Representatives Hays and Coffin that the Parliament of Canada and the Congress of the United States set up reciprocal committees to study the relations of the two countries. This is a modest plan but could prove useful especially in educating the American people about Canadian affairs.

Secondly, Mr. Diefenbaker proposes that NATO establish a food bank to lift the present huge farm surpluses from the world market and make them available for any emergency and also to hungry nations. That, too, is a useful plan though its probable cost to the taxpayers, who must finance the bank, must not be overlooked.

But before any specific plans of this or any other kind can hope to succeed there must be a change of general attitude, a movement away from conflicting national policies toward unity and, as Macmillan says, interdependence. In him, as in his great predecessor at Fulton, the West has found a potent voice. It certainly will be heard in Moscow. Will the free peoples hear it too?

Who Speaks for the Consumers?

THE CITY OF VICTORIA WILL be represented before the Public Utilities Commission when it resumes hearings here this week on the B.C. Electric's application for rate increases.

The city representatives, municipal manager Cecil Wyatt and assistant city solicitor Angus Smith, will ask why charges are higher here than they are in many other parts of Canada and in the Pacific Northwest.

It is gratifying to know that the question will be raised. Until recently the city had made provision for a watching brief only. By more active participation, Victoria will see that the position of the consumers—the residents of this area as well as commercial and other users—is not ignored.

But while the city prepares to ask questions, Premier Bennett declines comment on any part his Government will take in the hearings. "It would be improper for me to say," he states in reply to a direct question on participation. When he was asked if a department of the government could present a brief his reply was "I'm not discussing that."

Why isn't he? Isn't the cost of electricity of direct and immediate concern to the people of British Columbia and its elected representatives?

Most residents, we believe, think it is.

The very complexity of the issue—the intricate formulas which are applied to different types of service—suggest the need for experienced and competent representatives to safeguard the public interest. This is no issue for an ordinary layman. Experts are required. Surely the government could find them.

If the Premier's cryptic remarks obscure the fact that the province of British Columbia is doing something about the rate hearing, the public should be informed. If the province is doing nothing, the people should likewise know.

They're Not 'Boosting'

HIGH SCHOOL AND UNIVERSITY students in Bulgaria, says a leader of the country's politburo, are showing alarming shortcomings in the communist party's work among young people.

The students, the spokesman says, are apolitical. They couldn't care less about Marx and are showing their apathy by turning in blank papers when questions on communism are put to them.

The politburo man argues that youth "does not know well enough what capitalism is like, nor has it a clear picture of the suffering of the people in the past."

This may be very true. But the students, by the mere experience of living in a satellite country, know what communism is like. They have reason to believe it unpolitical to express criticism. They revert to an apolitical attitude.

Here, it seems, is a variation of an idiom once popular among American Chambers of Commerce. The Bulgarian version seems to go "If you can't knock, don't boost"—a policy the students seem to be following very successfully.

Tragedy on Snifkin's Lawn

THE purpose of machinery is to save human labor but, as my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin, has lately found, this idea, like so many others, is illusory. The machine is not saving Mr. Snifkin's labor. He has a machine but he is working harder than ever.

His machine is a gasoline-powered lawn mower, an excellent device which never fails to operate and cuts the grass very short, and yet it represents both the surrender of Mr. Snifkin's most sacred principles and the great failure of the modern age. These facts are worth serious consideration and have received it from the entire neighborhood.

Hutchison

ACCORDING to Mr. Snifkin's sacred principles a garden and a lawn are intended to provide human enjoyment. This, of course, is an heretical idea nowadays when people generally do not enjoy gardens and lawns but maintain them as a grave personal responsibility. Mr. Snifkin, up to a few days ago, Mr. Snifkin enjoyed his garden and especially his lawn with a carefree spirit and without a machine.

In fact, he had perfected the management of his lawn by a method wonderfully simple, efficient and cheap. Mrs. Snifkin volunteered, long ago, to cut the lawn with an old-fashioned, unpowdered mower in order to keep her weight down and Mr. Snifkin had generously allowed her this privilege.

THIS year after year he had lounged upon the grass watching Mrs. Snifkin cut it and her avoirdupois simultaneously. (He is a very generous man and considerate husband.)

Then came the machine. It entered Mr. Snifkin's gate as the machine has entered civilization everywhere with a harmless look and a cheerful sputtering sound. It entered Mr. Snifkin's gate, indeed, precisely as sputnik entered outer space—a hopeful portent of man's control over the universe. But no machine, either sputnik or lawnmower, ever turns out like that. There is always the hidden dilemma. There is always the woman.

A CHARMING salesman quickly convinced Mr. Snifkin that the gasoline-powered lawn mower could be operated by any child, even by Mr. Snifkin. He, in turn, offered to teach Mrs. Snifkin how to operate it and looked forward to many more years of lounging on the lawn.

There, as always happens, the whole logic of the machine age fell flat on its face. Mrs. Snifkin refused to touch the handles of the new mower. She flew into a sulk and announced that if she could not cut the lawn by hand she wouldn't cut it at all. She would simply lounge and put on avoirdupois, which she proceeded to do at a rapid rate.

EVERY woman is a conservative at heart. No good woman really wants to change anything. All women are instinctively opposed to the age of machinery and progress. The women's vote elects Conservative governments. The mysterious female mind is the Tories' secret weapon.

Mr. Snifkin had ample time to consider these facts as he found himself no longer lounging on his lawn but walking around and around it behind a machine which refused to stop.

It was easy to start the monster into smothering energy and fast motion. Unfortunately, Mr. Snifkin had forgotten how to turn it off. The whole tragedy of modern man was written on his perspiring face and tired body as he grasped the handles of the machine and followed wherever it led.

MR. SNIFKIN had bought the machine at great cost but he did not own it. He did not even own his lawn any more. He didn't own himself. He was only an inferior mechanical appendage, an oddity, a curiosity, a freak, a thing attached loosely to the mower.

I doubt, though, that Mrs. Snifkin and the neighbors appreciated the true symbolism of that pitiable scene as they watched Mr. Snifkin reeling hour after hour around his large lawn in what Euclid would call eccentric circles.

They didn't even hear Mr. Snifkin's cries for help over the roar of the motor. They heard only their own roars of laughter. Mrs. Snifkin must have laughed off quite a few pounds that day.

THE lawn, too, was diminishing in bulk, for after cutting off all the grass the machine, also laughing deep down in its steel throat, began to cut the earth in dark, ragged streaks and occasionally attacked the perennial border with voracious teeth.

This spectacle might have continued indefinitely—a perfect microcosm of human society in the machine age, a miniature of mankind fastened to a sputnik, a local version of the cold war—if the supply of gasoline had not run out at last.

With a final snort of derision, the machine stopped. Mr. Snifkin collapsed on the lawn. Mrs. Snifkin collapsed on a deck chair and the neighbors went home to spread the news.

THAT wasn't the end of it. Mr. Snifkin (having finally learned to turn the thing off) is permanently attached to the machine. Twice a week he must follow it around the lawn; year after year, until he collapses altogether. The long corridor of time looms far ahead, endless miles and countless footsteps.

Mr. Snifkin, with the aid of a machine, is working harder than ever. Mrs. Snifkin is lounging, laughing and putting on weight.

FROM ALGIERS

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Poker in Algeria

AS a spectacle, Gen. de Gaulle's descent upon Algiers was something to remember.

The huge, excited crowds, the display of military splendor for which the French army has a superb knack, the stronger colorings that strong emotions somehow give such scenes—all these were there.

One kept remembering the line in T. S. Eliot's poem "On a General's Triumph": "Oh the eagles! Oh the eagles! Oh the triumph!"

But these public scenes, easily dominated by the tall, pale, impassive figure of the General, were in fact not the real drama of the occasion. The real drama began far away in Paris and continued, wholly behind the scenes, here in Algiers.

The actors were the members of the General's government, the people of his entourage, and the leaders of the movement in Algeria that precipitated the French crisis. The drama's theme was a desperate, last-minute attempt to persuade de Gaulle to make Jacques Soustelle his minister for Algeria. Thus, de Gaulle was to give full recognition of the new state of affairs here, and even to consecrate this state of affairs which Soustelle has done so much to bring about.

Sometimes one wonders just how wily, just how much of a poker player Charles de Gaulle really is. For example, if his final decision had been made in Paris when it was probably taken last Tuesday, the hot-heads of the Algerian Committee of Public Safety might well have made really bad trouble. It would have been easy to organize trouble in the crowds that put so much more passion, the next day, into their shouts of "Soustelle, Soustelle!" than into their acclamations of de Gaulle.

Decision Veiled

But in fact, after the final cabinet meeting in Paris Tuesday evening, the word was passed to Algiers with seeming authority, that the General's mind was still entirely open and the great decision had yet to be made. The same word was brought back to Algiers by Gen. Salan and the other military personalities who were flown to Paris to confer with the head of the French government.

The more pessimistic leaders of the movement here in Algiers already expected the blow that finally fell. But there was still the off chance, better than an off chance some said, "There were also enough old Gaullists in the Algerian movement (along with an ample supply of old Petainists) to understand that de Gaulle was more likely to be persuaded by politeness than by threats. So everything was planned, everything was organized, to please and to persuade by a fine show of enthusiasm and submissiveness.

One can imagine the breathless moments after de Gaulle's arrival, among all the little group of persons immediately concerned, at the summer palace on its hill above the city where the General did his real work of the day. Even at the airport, the mere character of his greeting to each of his welcomers was studied with passionate attention.

Then, quite quietly at the summer palace, de Gaulle gave his answer. He himself would be his own minister for Algeria. Gen. Salan would be his deputy on the scene. The Committee of Public Safety might continue, but as a "civil and propaganda organization," and not as a substitute for the public administration of Algeria.

It was not the answer desired by the new masters of Algiers. It offered no consecration, no real recognition even, of their movement. Above all, it did not make de Gaulle their "prisoner," in the sense so often predicted by the French left wing in the days of crisis in Paris. But it was the only answer that neither Soustelle, nor any of Soustelle's backers in de Gaulle's personal circle, nor indeed anyone else could possibly dare to challenge.

Magnificent Irony

There was a magnificent irony, therefore, in the final public scene of that first day—the immense meeting in the Algiers Forum, where de Gaulle made his speech to the people. The irony knew, by then, that the crowd would not hear the two things it wanted to hear, the nomination of Soustelle and approval of Soustelle's program for Algeria. The crowd seemed to sense its disappointment.

Yet the whole vast machine of enthusiasm had by now developed its own momentum. It would not be turned back. So those who were most disappointed played the parts that the occasion had, so to speak, ruthlessly allotted to them. De Gaulle was cheered for a speech, at once emotional and enigmatic, that left his hands free to seek almost any Algerian solution he considers practical and appropriate. And after the General and the dignitaries departed, a large part of the crowd remained to keep up the vain shout of "Soustelle! Soustelle!"

Before these words can be printed, far more may have happened, and these things that may happen will perhaps transform the outlook. But as these words are written, it would appear that de Gaulle has recaptured full control in this deeply troubled city, without in any way entangling himself with all those forces that seemed so likely to entangle him. That, in itself, is a remarkable accomplishment.

As Our Readers See It

Meet the People

In announcing the itinerary of our beloved Princess, I note that the public and the children of our city will only get a glimpse of her during her drive through the city.

How come the members of the Legislature are honoring themselves?

Princess Margaret is not interested in politics, or those in elected positions. Does Premier Bennett think she made the trip solely to see him in his exalted role?

We, the citizens should be able to share the honor of seeing and meeting the Princess, instead of a hand-picked few. I hope the committee in charge and Victorians in general will see to it that plans be rearranged so that no one group be favored.

Speed and Noise

With reference to the recent letter on the so-called Oak Bay drag strip submitted by "Subscriber".

On the evening of Saturday, May 31, a group made up of members of the various clubs within the Island Timing Association, checked the portion of Oak Bay Avenue in question.

"Subscriber" left us with the impression that the Hot Rod clubs or else younger drivers were responsible for speeding and noisy mufflers.

Here is the results of an actual count of the first 100 vehicles which passed:

	Commercial	Driver	Driver
	Over 30	Under 30	Years
Speeding	3	29	4
Noisy Mufflers	4	3	2

It is obvious that we did not have the opportunity to actually prove the ages of the drivers, but we attempted to guess the ages to the best of our ability.

We are pleased to report that we did not observe any traffic violations by club members during the period in question.

However, of the four drivers under 30 years of age, two are shot-rodders. That is to say people who do not wish to abide by the rules of the various clubs, and therefore are not members.

We feel that this will help to clarify this matter, and we would like to state that we agree with "Subscriber" as far as his complaint goes. But please, place the blame where blame is due.

Everybody Hit

Your report of the meeting of the Victoria Labor Council on Wednesday evening is a series of irresponsible statements such as one has come to expect from the labor unions. A lot of sound and fury and very little else.

One statement which requires comment was to the effect that Mayor Scourrah and the Chamber of Commerce are more concerned about the effect of the SIU strike on a handful of shopkeepers than about the unemployed.

If only a handful of shopkeepers were affected it would be bad enough. Apart from the travelling public, who is this strike affecting on Vancouver Island?

It is affecting hotels, motels and restaurants, and all who service them such as wholesale meat dealers and grocers, bakers, dairies, and laundries, beverage manufacturers. It is affecting the income of the salesmen representing the businesses, in fact any salesman on commission whether he be selling any commodity from insurance to advertising.

It is affecting taxi drivers, bus drivers, service station operators and mechanics; in fact nearly every business in the city. It is affecting the employment of sales clerks, waitresses, housekeepers and maids, and students, looking for summer jobs. In fact it is aggravating the employment situation which the Labor Council professes to be so concerned about. In time the results will be felt by the members of every trade such as carpenters, plumbers, electricians. Is it any wonder that the Mayor and the Chamber of Commerce and any thinking person is concerned.

In former times, persons causing such havoc to a community would have been tarred and feathered by the irate citizens and run out of town on a rail.

France and Germany

It is a fitting and impressive finale to the French drama in North Africa that a figure like General de Gaulle should deliver the epilogue to that European tragedy which had its climax in two terrible wars. Indeed, the French occupation of North Africa at the beginning of this century was the prologue to that gigantic struggle; the shots fired at Sarajevo in 1914 gave the starting signal.

Millions of precious lives and rivers of blood were sacrificed "to make the world safe for democracy," while France, considered the democratic nation par excellence, is now resorting to semi-dictatorship to solve its "internal" problems—the chief problem being the refusal of over 200,000 Moslem-Arabs in Africa to become "Frenchmen" in spite of acts of parliament passed in Paris. "Self-determination" is the pious phrase for this socio-political system. It has failed on account of errors in functional application: the nations with the most guns were allowed to determine the fate of their victims.

That the system is not without merits, or that sometimes good may come from evil has been demonstrated in recent years in West Germany, where the millions of refugees and exiles were the basic cause of the German economic miracle. Driven from their homes in old Austria-Hungary and East Germany, they had to start to gain a new existence from a near-starvation standard of life, where every change had to be an improvement.

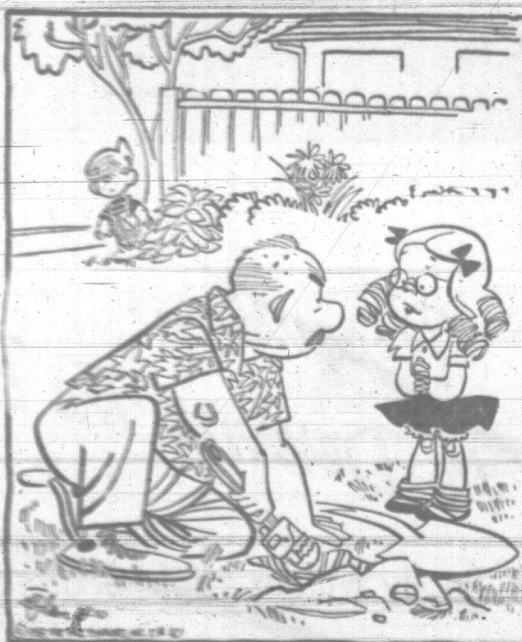

It is noteworthy that even at this time there are some 5,000 escapees arriving in West Germany every month from that economic paradise of Communist Central and Eastern Europe. By dint of hard work and frugality these Germans are building new homes for themselves. Their government is making loans to France to carry on those anachronistic colonial wars, as well as paying for the foreign troops stationed in West Germany by NATO.

Seemingly to prove that they are incorrigible, the Germans are recruiting an army of their own: buying guns from England, fighter planes from Canada, and even the Turks, we are told recently, are making arms for West Germany. The only realists who have learned a lesson from history are the Krupps. For three generations they have been making cannons, now they are manufacturing pots and pans and similar so-called consumer goods. A classic "farewell to arms."

June 10, 1898 — Canadian Pacific Navigation Company is arranging for the building of a fast steamer for the route between Victoria and Vancouver to provide daylight service between the two centres.

June 10, 1918 — New York: Germany has carried her unrestricted submarine warfare to this side of the ocean and at least six ships, perhaps as many as 75, have been sunk off the Atlantic coast.

June 10, 1938 — Customs department figures show indication of record tourist traffic season. In the five months ending May 31, 3,891 cars with 9,620 passengers passed through Victoria and Sidney ports.

The Most Grateful Rider

BECAUSE I'm credulous, I've always accepted the statement that the greatest mechanical development of all time was the invention of the wheel.

Two to three hours after the first riders had flashed over the finish line in our 100-mile centennial bike race on Saturday, I began to have doubts. I'd had about all the wheels I wanted for some time to come. Had anyone asked me about this prehistoric invention, I'd have glared at him in stony silence. That way you can't be misquoted.

Sure it was a great race. It was a privilege to work on it. But wheels, wheels, wheels. I felt like a kid who'd just dismantled a clock and been told to put it together again.

In bike races, as in all things, the best laid plans, etc. It was that way at the prize presentation. Lawrie Wallace was to give the awards from Nanaimo, Chemainus and Duncan to their respective winners. Only Lawrie had also to be on a plane for Vancouver when the presentations were under way.

So we ran in the reserves and stitched up that little tear in the arrangements. Then there was a mild disagreement with certain boys on how one little feature of the wind-up should go. I'd just told them to stop talking while their elder spoke. They fooled me by stopping.

UNNERVING

That's unnerving. Around home the louder the crowd starts up, the louder people ignore me. I'd just come from the shattering experience of being listened to, when I bumped into another bike rider. By then my nerves were a bit frayed.

"And what," I asked in what I hope wasn't too waspish a tone, "can I do for you? Are you looking for a prize?"

"Nope," said the rider, "I'm Dick Duncan."

Stott

I just came in. And I sure could do with a wash."

So we headed for the showers at the back of the shop. That isn't a 100-mile journey, but it's quite a way. I forgot for the moment that he'd just ridden down from Qualicum, until he said:

"Shall we take it a little slower on these stairs. My legs aren't ready for fast walking yet."

We slowed down and I asked him how he'd done on the Malahat.

"Walked up," he said. "You see, I used to do my bike riding when Torchy was racing around here. That's a while ago. But the Legion boys at Chemainus fixed me up with an outfit and I had to justify their action by finishing the race."

OLD TIMES BOY

We were sauntering down our last mile to the showers, and Dick was taking in the sights in the composing room.

"You know," he remarked, "I used to deliver the Times about thirty-four years ago. Sure had a good crowd."

Finally we reached the washroom and I untied his shoes because his legs were getting a little stiff.

Ten minutes later he was back in my office.

"You think I could have a look at the paper?" he asked, and I gave him a couple. "Boy," he said, "that was some bike race. It's kinda nice coming in here too. That's the Times for you. They treat you right."

I've been thinking about Dick since he left. We "treated him right" by giving him a cheerful greeting, a hot shower, a couple of newspapers and the same treatment accorded all the other riders who also seemed well pleased.

I'm happy that I ran into him when I did. Men like him are a tonic. They're rich because they're grateful for small considerations. They help to restore your faith in humanity and other things.

Maybe the invention of the wheel is the greatest mechanical development of all time after all.

Baldness

Emerging Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Why do so many men lose their hair fairly early in life? There are a number of factors. The most important is, first, maleness, because few women get bald in the way a man does, and no woman gets a shiny bald head, with a fringe of good hair about it. The next big factor is heredity; all of us know men with a shiny bald head who have sons who, by the age of 35, have a shiny bald head. Other men who have a fuzzy bald head may have sons with a fuzzy bald head.

Alvarez

Getting back to the factor of sex, it has been known since ancient times that the sunuchs of the Orient—men who, early in life, were castrated so that they could be put in charge of a king's harem—never got bald. As long as they lived, they had a perfect head of hair. Similarly, a man who in early life loses most of his testicular tissue during an attack of mumps, and for the rest of his days is eunuchic, with a short trunk, long legs, a wide pelvis, and often a small pale wrinkled face, usually has a fine head of hair all his days. Many of these men don't even get gray. I have read that if an eunuch is given enough male hormone for a long enough time he may start getting bald.

There is another factor in producing baldness, and that is race. There are some races of men, like the Ainu of Japan, so hairy that among them baldness is rare. According to Drs. L. Synder and H. Yingling, over 40 per cent of American men of 35 years of age and older are likely to get somewhat bald. About 8 per cent of women tend to lose their hair for a while, as after a nervous shock, or an operation, or the bearing of a child. Usually, the hair starts coming out in handfuls just three months after the shock, which so seriously injured the hair follicles that the hairs died. The reason that this hair comes out after three months is that it takes three months for the new growing hair to push the old dead hair out, just as it takes a new thumbnail many weeks to push an old dead thumbnail out after it was caught in the door or pounded with a hammer. If people only knew this, they could save themselves a lot of money and trouble going to a hair quack.

Years ago, the great French skin specialist, Sabouraud, spent much of his life studying baldness. He found that in most cases, men who are losing their hair have some dandruff, and usually some bacterial infection of the scalp. For years, dermatologists (skin specialists) have tried to blame baldness on one of the germs they found in hair follicles, but without much success.

They have prescribed shampoos, antiseptic lotions and antiseptic and stimulating ointments, plus massage and glandular hormones, but nothing has succeeded in producing more hair. Years ago, a committee on cosmetics of the American Medical Association, after much research, wrote a booklet in which they admitted that they had found nothing that would grow real hair on a bald head. A few men, for a while, thought that the loss of hair might be due to too much tension in the scalp, but this theory did not hold up. Other men blamed a poor circulation in the scalp, while others blamed the wearing of tight hats, but today one can see any number of men who, in spite of going about always without a hat, are bald. In recent years, men have claimed that exposure of the scalp to the sun would cause the hair to grow; but we know now that this isn't so.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Plants Can Be Kept in Flower

Comparatively few home gardeners realize the length of time plants will continue to flower if fading blooms are promptly removed.

We know that the production of flowers is one step toward the production of seed, and that seeds start forming as a flower passes its prime.

When we consider the potential power which is packed into a seed no larger than the head of a pin, or maybe as fine as a grain of dust, it gradually dawns on us that the production of millions must weaken a plant.

Because of the amount of energy used in producing seed, plants will cease to make more flowers when a few blooms have been pollinated and seeds start to form.

The main purpose of flowering plants in a garden is not to provide seed but to provide a brilliant display of color for as long a period as possible.

If seed is prevented from forming and maturing, the plant will produce more flowers in a vain attempt to make seed, and so serve its garden purpose the better.

With fully double flowers which do not habitually form seed, the removal of faded flowers will also lengthen the period of bloom. In this instance, cutting the stem back its full length stimulates further flower stems to form and grow. One year we grew the so-called Esther Read daisy (Chrysanthemum maximum var. "Esther Read") for market cut flowers. The regular twice-a-week picking of blooms resulted in almost continuous flowering through June, July and August.

There was even a bonus crop in fall after a month's rest. Gardeners have been heard to say the work of removing the blossoms consumes too much time. That is true if it is left for a certain day or time. But a few minutes spent two or three times a day, as a rest between regular household jobs, keeps the plants well cleared of past-prime flowers.

Inco Metals at work in Canada

To help insure the purity of the milk you drink, the tanks on most modern dairy tank trucks are made of stainless steel containing about 8% nickel. The stainless steel for these tanks is manufactured right here in Canada from nickel supplied by Inco. In Sudbury, Ontario, Inco workmen mine, mill and smelt the nickel-bearing ore. Then it goes to Inco's Port Colborne plant for refining. The refined nickel is sold to a Canadian steel company for the production of stainless steel. And Canadian fabricators use this nickel-containing stainless steel in the manufacture of dairy tank trucks and many other products.

There's INCO NICKEL in modern stainless steel dairy tank trucks... and it helps keep your milk pure

STAINLESS STEEL is a modern miracle metal. It resists rust and corrosion. It won't stain or tarnish. It has a bright, shiny surface that is easy to keep clean.

No wonder so many modern housewives want stainless steel sinks in their kitchens... stainless steel tableware in their dining rooms. Architects have used stainless steel for years to brighten and beautify the interiors of the buildings they design... and now they're using it for the exterior walls of buildings. Food-processing industries depend on it to help keep their products pure.

Take the dairy industry, for example. Modern farms and dairies are now using stainless steel equipment for handling and processing milk. The milk seldom touches anything but stainless steel from milking to bottling time. Even the tanks on the huge trucks that haul milk from the farm to the dairy are made with stainless steel to protect the milk from contamination.

These dairy tank trucks are manufactured in Canada. The stainless steel that goes into them is also produced in Canada. Most of the stainless steel made in Canada for dairy equipment contains Inco Nickel. Another example of the way Inco metals serve the Canadian industries that serve you.

Evangelist Vaus Denies Lending Money to Cohen

By TONY DICKASON

An ordained Baptist minister, in Victoria Monday on a speaking tour, denied giving former mobster-gambler Mickey Cohen a $7,000 loan on which to live.

Mr. Vaus, an evangelist and former "wiretapper" employee of Cohen, said: "I personally never gave him or loaned him anything, though the organization I was affiliated with gave him money for clothes, food and shelter. The Jim Vaus Evangelistic Association gave him less than $4,000."

Cohen claimed Friday while facing an assault charge in Los Angeles that he had been living on loans from friends, including $7,000 from Mr. Vaus.

The money was given Cohen, said Mr. Vaus, "two or three years ago" on Cohen's release from prison.

"It wasn't on my specific say-so, but was on a resolution drawn up by the board of directors."

He said the non-profit association is pledged to help persons re-establish themselves in society "by bringing their hearts and minds to Christ."

KNOWN TO GOD

Mr. Vaus said "whether this has accomplished any good for Mr. Cohen, I don't know. It's known only to God."

Prior to Mr. Vaus' conversion in 1949 by Billy Graham, he worked for Cohen about two years, basically to protect him against use of wire-tapping equipment.

He admitted that his skill with electronics did allow cutting-in on race results.

The 39-year-old former U.S. army captain said of Cohen's character: "To say the least, most interesting. He looks on himself as a present-day Robin Hood. He has accomplished a lot of good with his money, but that's not the whole story. Crime hurts a lot of people."

The money given Cohen, he said, "wasn't a loan, but an investment for spiritual returns."

Have you any money yourself?

$500 A MONTH PAY

"I'm on a salary," said Mr. Vaus. "I draw $500 a month, and I'm given my travel expenses. My income is low enough that I've not had to pay income tax the past three years. I live comfortably."

He has a "small cattle ranch" near San Francisco, a life insurance policy, but apart from that no assets or tangible investments.

He spoke here Monday night in Central Baptist Church.

The theme: "Christ and his ability to transform any man's life."

He disclaimed being an electronics "expert."

"I've just re-wired my home, but that's a far cry from being an expert on the subject."

Since ordination, he has made 700 speaking appearances a year, and is slated to speak tonight in Penticton.

SMALL YACHT FROM MALAYA HEADED HERE

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—A former Malayan civil servant sailed in a 4½-ton yacht Monday night for the British Columbia coast.

He is B. A. Platt, formerly an assistant district officer in Ampang, Selangor State.

Platt has a companion, an air force officer, for the journey as far as Labuan, British North Borneo, but from then on he will be alone.

The trip is expected to take about seven months.

Laing Flays 'Secret Debt' Sacred Policy

VANCOUVER (CP)—Provincial Liberal leader Arthur Laing sharply criticized the financial policies of the Social Credit government Monday night and said Premier Bennett should make a forthright statement on the province's financial position.

Mr. Laing said that in the last five years "Mr. Bennett has borrowed and spread about this province $380,000,000 of outside capital, every cent of which with interest equal to the capital borrowed must be repaid by us in taxes, tolls or rates."

"This is the way Social Credit reduces debt."

The Liberal leader was speaking on a free-time political broadcast over a CBC provincial network.

He said "Mr. Bennett's Social Credit regime and squandering have been synonymous."

Now contractors were complaining the government owed them "several million dollars, some of it six months old."

"The potlatch is over. It is far past the time Premier Bennett took the people into his confidence and told them the true state of finances."

Western Growers Ask Freight Cuts

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia and Alberta complaints against freight rates on fruits and vegetables in western Canada were heard Monday by the board of transport commissioners.

The day's developments:

1. The board heard the B.C. government and B.C. Tree Fruits Limited, big interior fresh fruit and vegetable cooperative, call for lower rates on fresh fruits and vegetables within the West.
2. The Alberta government declared rates on potatoes from B.C. and eastern Canada discriminate against southern Alberta producers.
3. The B.C. Fruit Processors Limited complained that rates from its members' plants are too high on canned goods.
4. Alberta contended that the B.C. processors get undue rate preferences on canned goods over those in southern Alberta, claiming there is discrimination the board should wipe out.
5. Railway spokesmen disclaimed all discrimination suggestions and said the West now has about as much equalization of rates with eastern Canada on these products as is practicable. However, they said southern Alberta's situation might well be looked into.

The board concluded hearings Monday in an inquiry on equalization of fruit and vegetable rates from the East and West part of its six-year study into

Doctor Says Man Impaired After Story

A Victoria doctor testified in city police court today the main factor which made him decide that a motorist was "impaired" was when the driver told him during a sobriety test "he was a frontiersman and believed in the law."

Camille F. Cyr, 26, of 721 Pine, charged with impaired driving, had submitted himself to a test after being questioned by two police constables on May 31.

The test was conducted by Dr. E. L. McNeiven.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said he failed to see how Cyr's statement to the doctor could be a "deciding factor" in judging that he was impaired.

"He has given a satisfactory explanation why he said that to the doctor," he said.

Cyr told the court that he made the statement to the doctor to explain the reason why he had not opposed a sobriety test.

"I just meant that I believed in co-operating with the law," he said.

Dr. McNeiven said the statement struck him as being odd and indicating that the man was not fit to drive a car.

Magistrate Hall reserved judgment until June 12.

NEAR LILLOOET Fraser Canoe Team Serenaded At Every Halt

LILLOOET (CP)—The reenactment of Simon Fraser's historic canoe trip down the Fraser continued Monday with a hardy group of adventurers paddling from Lone Cabin Creek to Watson Bar Creek, 20 miles north of here.

The centennial expedition is greeted at every stop by a two-hour musical pageant, which travels with it paralleling its trip down the Fraser.

The pageant, put on by a travelling band of entertainers and produced by Gordon Hilker, displays the gold rush days and the part played by B.C. in the development of Canada.

The voyageurs are expected here on Saturday with the troupe on hand to greet them.

After leaving here, they move to Boston Bar, June 23; Hope and Yale, June 25; Mission, June 30; New Westminster, July 1, and Vancouver, July 2.

Sunshine Rare Gift For 400 Each Year

Every year about 400 persons, young and old, are given a happy, healthy holiday at the Fred Landsberg Sunshine Camp at Sooke.

Cripples who have not left their wheelchairs for years, blind men and women, old folk who cannot afford a holiday and youngsters who have never had one are specially catered for at the Sunshine Camp.

"Strange as it may seem, blind people enjoy dressing up in colorful costumes for a gala day at the camp as much as sighted people," says F. John Child, camp president.

"Being crippled does not prevent people from playing croquet or bowls. Being over 80 does not discourage old people from enjoying a row on a canal sea, or picking up shells to make gadgets in the handicrafts shop."

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Theresa Peek, aged 10, of Shreveport, La., for her question:

What Made Grand Canyon?

Andy has just returned from a visit to Grand Canyon and someday you also must visit this stupendous natural wonder. For no description, not even a three-dimensional movie, can do justice to its magnificent size, shapes and colors. The colors of the rocky terraces challenge the rainbow and they are changing every moment with shifting sunlight and clouds.

You stand on the rim of the canyon and look across to the opposite rim, maybe eight miles away. Each rim spills down in a series of sculptured terraces to the gorge a mile below. Down there is the Colorado River, the busy engineer that cut and carved the canyon. It is a swift, rapids-filled river and naturally it could not do all that work without getting somewhat dirty.

The busy river began its great work about 50,000,000 years ago. At that time it was a fast-flowing surface river, rushing down the slopes of the western mountains. For countless ages this had been a region of ups and downs. Sometimes the land sank and filled with a shallow sea. Then the trough heaved up to form a range of

Youngest Rocks at Top

The youngest rocks are at the rim of the canyon. In geological time they were formed only yesterday. Near the top, we find a layer of pink cliffs. They bear the imprints of the first flowering plants. As the river dug, a little lower down the rocks bear records of the giant dinosaurs who lived maybe 100,000,000 years ago.

Far down the canyon is a chocolate colored layer bearing fossil records of the first small reptiles. Still farther down are records of the first amphibians and of ancient plants. Just above the steep plunge to the river the ancient rocks bear fossils of the trilobites. Some 400,000,000 years ago these small crawlers were the most advanced creatures on earth. In carving its path, the busy river has laid bare for us the pages of earth's diary of life on earth.

Andy sends a Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas to Thomas Harper, age 12, of Philadelphia, Pa., for his question:

How did the Eskimos get to Alaska?

The vast home of the Eskimos covers the top of the world. It covers Alaska, Northern Canada, Greenland and around the world by way of Siberia. It is estimated that only some 40,000 Eskimos live in this huge expanse of territory.

Eskimos life is simple and full of hardships. But they are a cheerful and healthy people. We do not know when they first took up life in the frozen north. But the experts believe that the Eskimos of Alaska have been there for at least 2,000 years and maybe much longer.

There is little doubt that the Alaskan Eskimos came from Siberia. Chances are they crossed from Asia to America where these two continents are closest. In ancient times there may have been a land bridge between the two continents.

First PGE Train Met By 5,000 at Taylor

TAYLOR, B.C. (CP) — The first train of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway reached this northeastern British Columbia town Saturday. It was welcomed by nearly 5,000 persons.

Residents from the B.C. Peace River block centres of Dawson Creek and Fort St. John came to Taylor to give the diesel-pulled freight train crew a rousing welcome, with parades and a sports day.

Taylor, site of Pacific Petroleum's $50,000,000 natural gas "scrubbing" plant, was decked out for the festivities with thousands of balloons and banners.

The event was tied in with centennial celebrations. Many dignitaries of the provincial government, the railway, businessmen and municipal officials were in town.

The B.C. government delegation was headed by Highways Minister Gagliardi, who termed the celebration an outstanding historical event for the province.

He said the B.C. government is fully cognizant of the great value of the north country and would do everything possible for its development.

Mr. Gagliardi termed the railway to Taylor and eventually to Fort St. John as a great industrial link between the province's north and its mainland of southwestern B.C.

While the government and industry recognize the huge wealth of the north, the minister said, there still remain many hidden resources.

"It is the government's hope to reveal these hidden resources and develop them."

MARIA WAS SHOCKED

Clay Idols Baffle Stars From Europe

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Many European stars are baffled by the Hollywood publicity system, and Maria Schell is no exception.

"The relationship of actors and the public via the screen is the same," she said, "but the communication of actors and public via publicity seems decadent. There are many names who are stars in the newspapers, but I haven't seen them in movies for years."

The blonde German beauty is back in Hollywood for her second film here, The Hanging Tree, with Gary Cooper. Her first exposure to the local publicity mill was last year when she made The Brothers Karamazov.

She admitted she rebelled against the system. She found reporters asking her questions which shocked her. She said if the questions had come from non-press strangers, she would reply with an indignant, "I beg your pardon."

Maria is refreshingly frank. When asked for her opinion of The Brothers Karamazov, she replied openly:

"The script was wonderful—a faithful adaptation of the book. But something happened between what was in the script and what came out on the screen. I was disappointed."

DEBORAH KERR FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE ON 'CRUELTY'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Deborah Kerr Monday filed suit for divorce from her husband of 12 years, RAF hero Tony Bartley.

Bartley recently charged screen writer Peter Viertel had enticed the beautiful red-haired actress away from him. Viertel, on a movie location with Miss Kerr in Vienna, termed the charge "absurd and ridiculous."

Miss Kerr's suit charged extreme cruelty without making any specific allegations.

Rotarians Honor New Douglas Club

Some 300 Rotarians from the Pacific Northwest district welcomed another club to the international fold Monday night at the Empress Hotel.

District governor H. J. Welch of Qualicum Beach presented a charter to the newly-formed 26-member Rotary Club of Douglas (Victoria) which now becomes the second Rotary Club in the city.

The address was given by past district governor Warren E. Kraft of Seattle, who reminded the members of the organization's four-point creed of vocation, and service to their community, their club, and the world.

The new club is headed by president Oliver Prentice with Harold Timberlake, vice-president, and Robert Macmillan, secretary.

Directors of the club, which will meet each Monday at 6 p.m. in the Monterey Restaurant, are Jim Anderson and W. Parker Milner.

Dr. R. J. Wide, president of the sponsoring Rotary Club of Victoria, said "the credit for the formation of this new club in the Victoria area is entirely due to extension committee chairman Tom Bradbury."

Oliver Prentice responded to the address on behalf of the Douglas Club and pledged wholehearted support to the ideals and work of Rotary.

U.S. OPEN

Keep Cool, Cary!

By OSCAR FRALEY
TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Dr. Cary Middlecoff was praying for rain today.

When they start the coveted U.S. Open golf championship at Southern Hills Country Club on Thursday, the slender, nervous-mannered dentist will be one of the top favorites. But even though he is rested and refreshed, the two-time winner isn't looking forward to four rounds in promised near-100-degree heat.

"I'd like to see some rain or at least hope it stays windy," he said as he arrived to tune up for the big one. "I'm not good in the heat and without offering any alibi, that's what beat me last year."

The six-foot, two-inch Middlecoff gave it a game effort when they went at it over the Inverness course at Toledo last year. He stroked home a curling 10-foot birdie putt on the 32nd and finished with a 72. Dick Mayer, then virtually an unknown, for the championship. But in the playoff the next day, Middlecoff was murdered as he posted a 70 against Mayer's 72.

NO RESERVE
"I was 15 pounds underweight at the time," he grins now. "I was like a horse which runs a mile and a quarter and then drops dead. I didn't have the gas for that playoff 18 holes."

Jimmy Demaret, who also almost won it for a while at Inverness last year, had another way of putting it.

"Cary was like a driver in the Indianapolis 500-mile race who stays up there for the first 400 miles and then tries to run the last 100 miles on four flat tires," Demaret laughed.

Demaret can chuckle over it now but he, too, was a keenly disappointed man when Mayer, and then Middlecoff, came in one shot in front of him. This time he approaches the first tee on Thursday without any illusions. At 48, he admits, "I'm just out for a walk in the country."

But the 37-year-old Middlecoff, in as fine a physical condition as he has ever been, has high hopes. If the heat doesn't wear him out again in those two final rounds on suspenseful Saturday.

RESTED NOW
"I played in only four tournaments all winter. From the time of the open until the masters," he says. "I devoted most of my time to my new job at the Diplomat Club in Hollywood, Fla., and I have worked hard on my game in the last couple of months to get ready for this one. I'm driving better than ever and everything seems to be fitting together nicely."

Buck White, the veteran Mississippi pro who is one of Cary's aides in Florida, professes awe at the improvement in Middlecoff's game.

"He's hitting the ball a ton, a long ton," Buck says vehemently in the jargon of the pros, which, translated, means that Middlecoff is hitting the ball far, straight and handsome. "He'll outdrive Snead most of the time."

Which, among the pros, is the supreme accolade.

But Middlecoff isn't worried about his game. He remembers the way he folded physically in the torrid heat at Inverness last year and his chief concern is his stamina.

That's why he's praying for rain, or at least a steady wind, and he adds "If it will stay cloudy, everything will be just that much nicer."

And he has a lot of company. Because it's really hot, pardner, out there in those Oklahoma hollows.

BUT NOT HAPPY

Bread Needs Butter So Fiery Loes Back

BALTIMORE (AP)—Problem pitcher Billy Loes, as unpredictable as ever, has rejoined the Baltimore Orioles and says he is ready to pitch again for manager Paul Richards. But he would rather pitch for someone else.

The outspoken 28-year-old right-hander left no doubt about why he considered an earlier announcement that he would never play for Richards again. "I'll pitch because that's the way I make my living, not because I think Richards is the greatest man in the world," Loes said. "Sure I guess I could quit, but I'd be crazy to do that."

While Loes was sitting out a

TIGHE'S NOT A TIGER; NORMAN NEW MANAGER

DETROIT (AP)—Jack Tighe today was fired as manager of the Detroit Tigers. Bill Norman was named to succeed him. On the recommendation of general manager John McHale, the board of directors approved the move immediately.

Tighe was offered a job in the Detroit Tiger organization. But the 44-year-old manager delayed a decision and said he will return to his home in Spring Lake, Mich. The American League team is in Boston.

The Tigers are in last place and finished fourth under Tighe last season. Norman, 47, has been manager of the Tigers' Charleston farm club in the Triple-A American Association for the last 1½ years. He will take over the club with tonight's game.

PILS HERE WEDNESDAY

Peewee's Having A Tough Season

It's looking like a hard-luck season for Peewee Bradshaw.

The bustling Victoria Shamrock forward who finished in the runner-up spot in the Inter-City Lacrosse League scoring race last season was sidelined by influenza during opening games of the 1958 campaign.

Just starting to round into condition, Peewee ran into another roadblock when he suffered a broken nose at Nanaimo last Saturday and will take another day to recuperate when Shamrocks tackle Pilseners at Vancouver tonight.

Also missing tonight's tussle will be defencemen Jackie Northup and Jack Howse, who are unable to get away from work.

PLAY WEDNESDAY

However, all three will be in action when the Pils, second-ranked by the Irish for second place, play a return engagement at Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

Shamrocks, who can move within a single point of the pace-setting New Westminster Salmonbellies with a win tonight, will have Georgie Johnston in goal with Tommy

Druce, Ross Roskamp, Al

Davies and Art Green, Jr., sharing defence duties.

Archie Browning, Derry Davies and Jim McNulty will combine on one forward line. Ron Jay will work with Ed

Kowalyk and Bob McKee on another unit and Bert Bertola, Ed

Longpre and Paul Calve will form the third attacking unit.

Game time Wednesday night will be 8:30.

Arch Unable To Catch King

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Archie Moore, 196½, outpointed Howard King, 194, in 10 rounds Monday night in a non-title fight before 3,500 fans.

The light-heavy champion knocked King down three times, once in the ninth round for a nine-point. That was the closest Moore came to the 12th knockout in his long career. Moore claims to have knocked out three other fighters but they are not carried in the record book.

The decision was unanimous. Moore had outpointed the Reno boxer three times before. Moore had hoped to best the record of the late Young Stribling who had 126 knockouts.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

Heart Attack Too Much

SUDBURY (CP)—Heart of Midlothian romped to an easy 10-0 victory over the Northern Ontario All-Stars here Monday night to register their seventh win in eight games on their North American soccer tour.

The Scottish League champions from Edinburgh lost one game to Manchester City Saturday night at Toronto and lost one game out of 34 in league competition in the Scottish first division.

Conn scored four goals with centre forward Alex Young getting three, inside right Bob Blackwood two and left half Billy Higgins one.

It was an easy night's work for youthful netminder George Marshall who had but five shots to stop, two in the first half and three in the second.

At the other end of the field, Sudbury's rangy and acrobatic Miles Leslie stopped 44 drives by the rampaging Hearts.

Royals Tie St. Andrew's To Share Lead

VANCOUVER (CP)—New Westminster Royals moved into first place with two wins in the Pacific Coast Soccer League Monday night by playing to a scoreless draw with St. Andrew's at Vancouver's Callister Park.

In first place with five wins and one tie the Royals are Halcos and Hungaria.

Both teams missed a number of setups and scoring plays in the ragged game. They played through the two halves with neither side getting the edge. Each team missed shot, after shot at the nets.

Champs Crowned In Camosun Meet

Greg Harvey and Elsie Cooley are the new Camosun Tennis Club champions.

Harvey won the men's singles title with a victory over Andy Anderson while Miss Cooley defeated Jayne Heritage in the women's final.

Miss Cooley then teamed up with Ruth Boyd to win the women's doubles competition, defeating Miss Heritage and Joan Drew.

In the men's doubles event there was a bit of a switch, however, as Anderson and Herb Dickson stopped Harvey and Dick Morris.

In the mixed doubles event, Miss Cooley and Harvey defeated Ruth Boyd and Bill Mahon in the final.

Unbeaten Merchants Topple in Extra Frame

Vic Sports, pushing across the winning run in an extra inning, finally ended Merchants' runaway pace in the James Bay Little League.

The brilliant pitchers' battle saw Bob Burrows and Dave Simpson combine to blank the previously unbeaten leaders, 1-0, on three hits. The winners managed only two blows off the combined efforts of three Merchant pitchers.

Peter Duncan's seven-hitter and Dave Cranston's home run started Boosters off on the right foot as the Cadboro Bay Little League launched its second-half schedule.

Rick Cool's six-hit shutout put on Lions' hopes as Cubs opened the Esquimalt Little League's second half with a 7-0 triumph.

Jensen still feels the Red Sox have a chance and he's bent on proving his point even if he has to do it all by himself.

The stocky San Francisco slugger certainly went about it the right way Monday night when he blasted his 14th homer plus a double and a single to drive in four runs in a 9-4 victory over Detroit.

Jensen's performance paced the spurting Sox to their sixth straight victory and boosted them into a virtual tie for second place, 7½ games behind the idle Yanks.

HE'S DOING IT

In his California home, Jensen keeps an autographed picture of Joe DiMaggio which he obtained while both were members of the Yankees. Di Mag inscribed the photo this way: "Make 'em all moan, Jackie boy."

And that's exactly what Jensen is doing. His home run total is second in the American League, only to Bob Cerv's total of 15, and Jensen's 44 runs batted in put him only one behind the Kansas City outfielder, who also leads that department. . . . Not bad for a fellow who wanted to quit the game in disgust five years ago.

Jensen's homer, with two men on in the third inning, highlighted a six-run rally off loser Paul Foytack.

Another three-run homer by Gus Triandos helped Baltimore Orioles clip the Cleveland Indians, 5-2, behind southpaw Billy O'Dell's four-hit hurling. Triandos slammed his 12th homer off Cal McLish in the first, following singles by Al Pilarcik and Gene Woodling.

RAIN STOPS 'EM

Rain cheated the White Sox out of an apparent victory when it forced postponement of a game against the Senators with Chicago leading, 7-1, in the fourth inning.

Bob Purkey pitched Cincinnati into third place with a 3-0 victory over San Francisco in the only National League game scheduled. Purkey yielded only six hits and didn't walk a batter as he rolled to his fifth straight win and eighth of the season against a single defeat.

Steve Bilko connected for a two-run homer off left-hander Johnny Antonelli in the fourth inning and the Redlegs scored another run in the seventh when Eddie Mikiss singled home Don Hoak.

Despite the defeat, their ninth in the last 13 games, the Giants retained first place by three percentage points over the Milwaukee Braves.

MOUNTIES SWEEP TWO Fast Ball Games Aren't Lost Art

By The Associated Press

Vancouver strengthened its hold on first place in the Pacific Coast League Monday night with two 1-0 victories over Portland.

The double-header was played in a total time of less than 3½ hours, the seven-inning first game lasting only one hour and 10 minutes. It was the fastest PCL game ever played in the British Columbia city.

The fast play for the 16 innings of baseball was in sharp contrast to the 15-inning 4½-hour 8-8 tie game played at Vancouver Sunday. That game was called by the curfew law and the second game of the scheduled double-header was postponed until Monday night.

The first game Vancouver won on Joe Frazier's towering

Victoria golfers, who ordinarily have nothing to be ashamed of, contributed less than $60 to the National Golf Weekend program.

It was a disappointing turn-out for an event that directly aids junior golf development. Gorge Vale members, contributed half of that amount as some 20 city shotmakers turned in net scores that matched or bettered those turned in by the champions.

Stan Leonard matched men's par and Betty Stanhope was two strokes under women's regulation figures as the two golf champions set the marks for other Canadian golfers to shoot for Saturday.

Leonard, CPGA champion from Vancouver, toured Edmonton's Mayfair course in 70 strokes. Miss Stanhope, an Edmontonian who holds the Canadian women's open and closed titles, fired a 76.

Two junior champions who played with Leonard and Miss Stanhope didn't win their cards.

Junior Darling. 20-year-old Canadian women's junior champion from Montreal, came in with an 84, while 17-year-old Bill Wakeham of Victoria, the national junior men's champion, had a 79.

Both Miss Darling and Wakeham had putting difficulties and their handicaps of four and three, respectively, did not bring their net scores below the gross totals of Stan and Betty.

Hole-in-one insurance funds at Gorge Vale and Cedar Hill were tapped at the weekend.

Mike Ott scored his first ace in 25 years of golfing when, using a seven iron, he dropped his tee shot on the Gorge's 145-yard 14th. Ott was playing in a foursome with Sandy Mitchell, Hugh McWhirter and Jack Storrer.

Jim Thompson, playing against Harry Barnes in flight competition in the club handicap championship at Cedar Hill, scored the other ace. It came on the 105-yard ninth Sunday afternoon.

Dickie Munn, the 15-year-old who captured the handicap championship in the Times Island Open tournament, has reached the finals of Cedar Hill's club handicap event.

Munn, who downed Jack Stokes in one semi-final will face Ron Williams in the final. Williams had sidelined last year's champion, W. H. "Bill" Barnes, and then defeated Tom Johnson in the semi-final.

The Canadian Ladies' Golf Union has accepted an invitation to send a team of St. Andrews, Scotland, in June, 1959, for the first Commonwealth ladies' tournament.

Mrs. R. W. Laing, of Montreal, chairman of the interprovincial teams, is to be chairman of the Canadian selection committee.

The team is to be named on the basis of performances during the current season. Each Commonwealth team will number six players, including the captain and a reserve.

SHORT CHIPS: Juniors and high school students who take in Friday's pro match between Stan Leonard and Al Balding, at Gorge Vale, can purchase tickets at the club for half price... the match, fourth leg of a five-city British Columbia tour for $5,000 in prize money, will open with a clinic at 4 o'clock... the match proper will start 20 minutes later... G. Weir, of Gorge Vale, turned in the best net score in the National Golf Weekend, a 61.

It's not like telling tales out of school, but golfers who ask for strokes from Dr. George Bigelow are hereby advised that his handicap has changed again... he's back to a 1, his second change in one week... a 1-under-par 68, Saturday, at Oak Bay, did the trick... he also came in with a par-matching 69 Sunday... his 68 round with a handicap (at that time) of 2. Ted Dr. Bigelow with two other players for the half-way lead in the Todd Cup competition at Oak Bay... its a 36-hole medal affair... Bruce Hopkins, 69-3-66, and L. H. Morrison, 76-10-66, are the other pacesetters.

Sproule's Sniping Spells Easy Win

Dale Sproule was a one-man gang on Monday.

Sproule, a regular high scorer in bridge division play of the Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association, outdid himself Monday as he notched seven markers in leading his Saanich Farmer teammates to a 19-3 win over Victoria City.

In weekend action, Nanaimo teams fared poorly against Victoria teams.

In four weekend games against Victoria teams, Nanaimo failed to come up with a winner, losing one Saturday at home and three Sunday in Victoria's Stevenson Park.

Susan Eyeing Third Straight

Victoria's Susan Butt, who today is adding the spoils of a second straight tennis tournament conquest to her trophy shelf, aims her next volley in the direction of Vancouver.

And then the pert 20-year-old tennis queen, who still hasn't lost a set in sweeping the singles crowns at the B.C. Public Parks and Far West Invitational tournaments at Vancouver, plans to "come home and practice real hard" for the Canadian championships.

Susan, the Dominion's second-ranked woman player last year, Mirja Peterson and Maureen Bray will head a strong Victoria contingent to the Vancouver City event next weekend. The big Canadian title event will be played in Vancouver July 28-Aug. 3.

WILLEY WINS
Miss Butt won her second tournament at the weekend, defeating Bev Danby, 6-4, 6-4, in the Far West ladies' final. Paul Willey of Vancouver, ho leaves June 18 to join the Canadi Davis Cup team at Toronto, won the men's singles with a 3-6, 6-3, 6-0 victory over Art Jeffery, also of Vancouver.

Lee Dobson and Jocelyn Pease scored a major upset in the women's doubles. They ousted the top-seeded team of Marg McLean and Miss Danby, 6-4, 6-3, in the semis and then downed Claire Lovett and Natalie Hatch, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, in the final. Mrs. Lovett and Miss Hatch had upset Miss Butt and Pam Anstey in the semi-finals.

Miss Bray and Miss Peterson, participating in the Seattle City championships, missed their chance for weekend glory when they bowed to Jennifer MacDonal and Solveig Thompson of Seattle, 6-1, 7-5, in the ladies' double final.

Singles crowns in the American city meet went to a pair of Portland players, Bill Rose and Patty Miller, who also won the mixed title.

Miss Miller sidelined Miss Bray in the singles semifinals, 6-1, 6-3.

MEXICAN SOCCER TEAM HIT HARD BY INJURIES

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Mexico's worried manager, Antonio Lopes Herranz, had five injured players on his hands today and a hard match against Wales in the world soccer championships only 24 hours away.

Fullback Jose Villegas suffered the only serious injury in the Mexican squad that lost 3-0 to Sweden Sunday in the opening, upset-filled round.

Villegas' leg was encased in plaster and he will not be able to play again for some time.

Gorge Vale Quartet Captures Team Title

Consistency didn't pay off for Mrs. S. Paterson of Gorge Vale Golf Club in the Mid-Island Centennial women's golf championship at Nanaimo Sunday.

The Gorge Vale swinger put together steady rounds of 41 and 40 to tie Mrs. Jean Lusney of Comox for low gross honors in the 18-hole medal tourney.

However, Mrs. Lusney, who started with 44, and came in with a 37, took the title on the strength of a better score on the final nine holes.

The Gorge Vale quartet of Mrs. Paterson, Mrs. B. Thirlwell, Mrs. D. Naysmith and Miss N. O'Connell won the team title.

Low net honors were captured by Mrs. Marcia Galloway of Nanaimo, who had a 48-42 to go with her 25 handicap for a net 65.

Mrs. D. Armour of Vancouver, a 30-handicapper who also finished with a 65, was runner-up.

Other prize-winners included: Mrs. M. Hollywood, Langara, low gross, first nine 39; Mrs. D. Naysmith, low gross, second nine, 35.

SAN JUAN PIG WAR MEMORIAL URGED IN U.S.

WASHINGTON — Congress today was asked to make a national monument of the site where a British-owned pig met its death in 1859.

The pig, shot by an irate farmer on San Juan Island, part of the state of Washington east of the southern tip of Vancouver Island, was the lone casualty in a 12-year dispute between Great Britain and the United States over the boundary.

Senators Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, Washington Democrats, urged congressional recognition of the pig war as a milestone in the history of peaceful relations between the United States and Canada.

Girl Guide Camp Seeks Volunteers

CHEMAINUS — Lack of leaders may curtail plans of the Girl Guide committee for sending a large group of Guides to the new divisional camp site near Maple Bay this summer.

However, Guide officials are hopeful that a number of volunteers will come forward prior to the camp and offer their services.

Tentative plans are being made to send a local Girl Guide to the Portland camp this summer. The exchange of Guides with the Prince George company is also planned again this year.

Rotary Plans Golf Tourney For Centenary

CHEMAINUS — The Rotary Club may sponsor a centennial golf tournament here this summer.

Jack Jameson told the meeting this week that a golf tournament with good prizes would draw about 60 top golfers from all parts of the Island.

The tournament, he suggested, would be open to registered handicap golfers who would pay a set entry fee. He said he had talked to a number of Victoria golfers "and they were quite interested."

John Beardsley, George Hemmingsen and Bob Bennie were named as a committee, with Mr. Jameson as chairman, to look into the possibility of arranging the golf tourney at the local Mt. Brenton Golf Club.

Brief European Sojourn Yields Vivid Impress

By DON INGHAM
Times Staff Reporter

A 10-day trip to France, Belgium and Holland gives barely a taste of what these historic nations have to offer a visitor.

My first, but not last (I hope) trip to Europe was as a guest of Canadian Pacific Airlines, on a trip the company provided to show the type of service now in operation between Vancouver and Amsterdam.

In the 10 days of our trip the 80 people in our party spent no more than 30 hours flying in the speedy turbo-prop Britannia that flies non-stop between Vancouver and Amsterdam. The rest of the time was used in travelling by bus from Amsterdam to Brussels and Paris and return, with visits in the three major cities.

We tried to cram a thousand impressions into our eight days. It is impossible to remember them all, but for me a few stand out. Here they are, and I hope I never forget them.

Pretty Girls

There was the sight of dozens of pretty young Dutch girls riding side-saddle on their boy friends' motor scooters through the narrow streets of Amsterdam.

We arrived on the Ascension Day holiday, and the city seemed full of scooters zipping around curves and swooping over the roller-coaster bridges. The girls sat sideways, legs extended and ankles crossed, with one arm around the driver's waist. Graceful as queens on swift horses, they never lose balance nor dignity.

Steel derricks for the building of apartments stud the countryside. Right in the centre of a rural Dutch country-side there are clusters of apartment blocks and more buildings.

Many of the cows in Holland and Belgium at least the ones we saw wore blankets. They are protection, I suppose, from the cold winds blowing off the North Sea.

In Rotterdam most of the apartments have a big mirror set on the outside of a window in order to give the occupants a view of the sidewalk without opening the window. In the part of Amsterdam we saw, the apartments were older and had bay windows that made the mirrors unnecessary.

Driving south from Rotterdam through pastures and cultivated fields, one keeps seeing huge cranes and ships in the distance, on the horizon, and well above the countryside. Holland definitely is the "low country" — well below sea level.

Hot Dogs

These vignettes also are still clear in my mind:

Having a late-at-night breath of air on the Place de la Concorde in Paris, and having a Frenchman ask me the way to the Avenue des Champs-Elysees. I told him, too.

Munching a huge hot dog in the swank and soigne foyer of the Folies-Bergere.

Strolling through wicked Montmartre, and seeing the

KISS IN COURT COST HIM $50

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man acquitted on an assault charge was fined $50 for contempt of court Monday when he kissed and hugged his accuser's wife.

Laslo Tenenyl, 34, rushed to the public section of the courtroom after winning the dismissal and kissed the woman.

He had been charged with assaulting her husband, Magistrate N. J. Hartman cited Tenenyl for contempt after the kissing incident.

cafes filled with family groups — mother and father drinking wine, and the youngsters fruit juice. So my friend and I had a little milk each at a milk bar.

Goggling at the flamboyant babes on the Champs-Elysees. Rolling home in the dawn in busy, beautiful Brussels.

Smirking from our bus at people on an Antwerp street-car just an arm's length away.

Trying to take in the immensity and Gothic beauty of the "grandplace" in Brussels.

Feeling most insignificant at the Palace at Versailles, and being in the rooms where the blood of the French Revolution was shed.

On the trip home, stopping at Froisher Bay on Baffin Island and running into David Lowe, who works for the department of transport at the isolated air base and finds it "a little less than exciting." He is the son of Mrs. Mon Lowe, 1152 Mason Street.

But best of all was leaving the elevator in the Arc de Triomphe, climbing the gloomy stone staircase, and coming out into brilliant sunshine, 162 feet above the street, to find Paris in the spring at our feet.

Saanich MLA Asked to Run For Reeveship

A three-way battle for the reeveship of Saanich loomed today with the emergence of John Tisdalle, Saanich MLA for Saanich, as a possible candidate.

The by-election was set by council Monday for July 12.

Nomination day will be July 2.

Mr. Tisdalle would neither confirm nor deny reports that he would seek the reeveship thrown open by the resignation of Arthur Ash.

He admitted, however, that he has been approached by businessmen.

Coun. George Chatterton, director of Veterans Land Act, department of Veterans Affairs, is the only candidate to date who is contesting the reeveship. Another possible candidate is Joseph Casey, former reeve, who was defeated by Mr. Ash in 1955.

Kootenay Land Offer Made to Doukhobors

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — Leaders of British Columbia's 5,000 orthodox Doukhobors have cleared the way for possible settlement of the Doukhobor land problem, which has plagued successive governments for 20 years.

At weekend conventions in Grand Forks and Brilliant, 125 representatives of the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ decided to advise their people that some 19,000 acres of Kootenay land plus buildings may be purchased either individually or communally.

Title to the Kootenay land is held by the provincial government through the land settlement board. The land was taken over in 1939 from the bankrupt Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood to avoid foreclosure by trust companies, but the Doukhobors have continued to live on it, paying small rents.

HOUSE OF LORDS LABOR HEAD SUES BEAVERBROOK FOR LIBEL

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Silkin, acting Opposition Labor Party leader in the House of Lords, Monday sued the owner and editor of the right-wing Sunday Express for libel.

The article stated that although Silkin had campaigned against German rearmament he had become chairman of a company marketing the German Heinkel Mini-Car in Britain.

Teaching Skill 'Too Cheap'

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada's have been buying their educational professional services cheaply, the president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation said today.

"No other learned profession than teaching—unless it is the Protestant ministry—is granted such inadequate provisions and safeguards for training," George L. Roberts of Oshawa, Ont., told the Canadian Conference of Deans and Professors of Education.

B.C. Destroyer Captain Faces Court Martial

HALIFAX (CP) — A naval captain who was mentioned in dispatches during the Second World War and won the Distinguished Service Cross while serving in the Far East, faces a naval court-martial here Wednesday.

Capt. Dudley King, 48, a native of Wilson's Landing, B.C., commanded the destroyer escort Algonquin when it collided with a sister ship, the Nootka, Jan. 26, off Bermuda.

Capt. King served on the west coast in 1949, as chief of staff to the flag officer, and commanded HMCS Athabaskan during her second tour of duty in Korean waters. He was senior officer of Canadian destroyers. A naval official said the court-martial arose from the collision in which both ships were only slightly damaged. The trial is open to the press but a spokesman said "definite charges against Capt. King will not be made public until the hearing opens." He said "even Capt. King won't know the specific charges until that day."

EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Capt. King joined the navy in 1939. By 1941 he was executive officer on the corvette Arvida and became commander a year later. He was mentioned in dispatches for his services with the Canadian frigate Stettler from March, 1944, to November, 1945.

Promoted to captain in mid-1952, he assumed command of HMCS Shearwater naval air base at nearby Eastern Passage three years later.

Capt. King took over command of the First Canadian Escort Squadron, headed by the Algonquin, in July, 1957.

Esquimaux Asks Rights To Foreshore

Esquimaux Council Monday night agreed to make an application to the provincial government for foreshore rights in connection with the Forshaw Road beach.

This would give council jurisdiction over the ground below the high-water mark in the beach area.

A spokesman for the petitioners gave council assurance on the matter of sanitation and supervision of the children while on the beach.

Most teacher-training in Canada is considered inadequate by teachers' organizations, Mr. Roberts said. Training colleges generally had done an adequate job on the "artisan level," but had not developed satisfactory courses for "the truly professional teacher."

AWKWARD POSITION

Mr. Roberts said the teachers' organizations recognize that training colleges are in an awkward position, as they are subject to the control, direct or indirect, of provincial education departments.

"They are almost inevitably compelled to accept the expedient dictates of those departments as to entrance standards, length of training, and nature of certification."

"They are also beholden, directly or indirectly, to those government departments for their finances, and for their staffing, even though they may be ostensibly faculties of universities."

As circumstances vary from province to province, Mr. Roberts added, training colleges have to provide programs to suit candidates ranging from grade 10 students taking a brief summer course, to graduates of a four-year university honors course taking a year in a faculty of education for their basic certificate to teach.

NEED RELIGION

The CTF president added: "For a long, long time we have been buying our educational and our religious, professional services cheaply, and society today shows rather too clearly how highly it has regarded those services."

Mr. Roberts also raised the question of religious education in the schools. He said public opinion is growing in favor of it.

"And I am personally convinced that our youth and our society today need it—need it as literature, as history, as art and sculpture and architecture, as law, as heroic biography, as well as for its morals and ethics."

"Surely all this is possible without conflict over sectarian dogma."

ROYAL SALUTES today heralded the 37th birthday of Prince Philip. He spent a quiet day with the Queen and Princess Ann at Buckingham Palace and tonight was to salute Royal Marines parade and attend Royal Opera House.

He Shot His Father Because of Spanking

LOVINGTON, N.M. (AP) — Ten-year-old Paul Sims, who shot his father to death because of a spanking, was ordered confined to a school for boys Monday.

Ike Backs Parley To Soothe Latins

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — President Eisenhower has agreed to the idea of a hemisphere conference, either of presidents or of foreign ministers, to patch up U.S.-Latin American relations, it was reported today.

Informed sources said the president's consent is conveyed in a letter which U.S. assistant secretary of state Roy R. Rubottom will present to President Juscelino Kubitschek today.

Rubottom, who arrived here Monday, gave Foreign Minister Jose C. Macedo Soares a preview of the letter at a 45-minute secret meeting shortly after his arrival. Ministry sources said he also discussed plans for Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' visit here in August.

Macedo called in his top aides for a strategy session immediately after his meeting with Rubottom.

Woman Fatally Shot, Man Faces Charge of Murder

SARNIA (CP) — A 68-year-old retired night watchman was charged with murder today after the death in hospital of Mrs. Beatrice Dickinson, 41, shot in the head Monday night in a boarding house kitchen.

Grant Wilcox, who lives in the basement of the two-storey home, was arrested by police shortly after the shooting. He was first charged with attempted murder.

Two eyewitnesses said Mrs. Dickinson was preparing supper when the shooting occurred. Donat Morin, 60, for whom she kept house, was reading a paper and Mrs. Velma Mutt was feeding her daughter, Linda.

FLIER KILLED BY PLANE HE ABANDONED?

ROSEBURG, Ore. (AP) — A navy jet pilot, forced to bail out near here Friday, may have been struck and killed by his falling plane before he reached the ground.

Coroner L. L. Powers said Monday the findings of a pathologist suggest that the flier, Cmdr. George W. Staehel, was hit by the disabled aircraft.

Gone Fishing? Not Us

We're staying downtown tending to our business of making shopping a pleasure and a convenience for our customers—SURE IT'S FUN to close up shop and go fishing, golfing or gardening in the middle of the week—we would all like to do it but we have a responsibility to our customers and THEY COME FIRST!! As a service organization we don't feel that we have the right to tell our customers when to shop—THEY TELL US!!

We, at the Bay, think that the 6-Day Shopping Week serves customers and community best

Here's why!:

1. CUSTOMER CONVENIENCE. The busy lives of our customers demand extra shopping time—shift work, children in school, mothers working and summer vacations all tend to cut down the time in the day left for essential shopping so the 6-day shopping week gives customers more leisure shopping time of their own choosing.

2. CREATES EMPLOYMENT. In order to maintain full service many extra people have been employed. This means more money for more people and helps relieve the unemployment picture. It does not raise prices because better service and increased employment means more sales . . . keeping operating costs down and prices to you . . . LOW!

3. STAFF CONVENIENCE. Our staff works a 40-hour, 5-day week although we are open 6 days. They get a full day off every week besides Sunday. Previously they had to take 2 half days. The extra shopping times provide the staff with leisure shopping time too.

4. OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMER CONVENIENCE. Now our out-of-town customers can plan a full day of shopping at the BAY any day in the week. This extra shopping traffic in town helps everyone. Our job is to make certain all our customers—local and out-of-town—are completely satisfied. That is our policy and that is our practice.

5. THE WHOLE FAMILY LIKES SIX-DAY SHOPPING. It gives them extra time to be together and enjoy the long summer days. Dad likes the extra hours to come down and browse in the sporting goods and hardware; mother likes the extra hours because she doesn't have to rush, can enjoy seeing new merchandise and old friends. Business girls now have the chance to shop instead of just running in and buy . . . and the children can come down with Mom and Dad for a real trip to town!

Island-Hopping Road Feasible, Says Expert

An island-hopping highway to connect Vancouver Island with the mainland is feasible from an engineering standpoint, an expert said here today.

A. B. Sanderson, engineering consultant whose projects include the new Point Ellice Bridge, said the obstacles to building the necessary bridges and tunnels would be economic, rather than engineering.

"If the money is available, almost anything can be built," he said.

Mr. Sanderson was commenting on a suggestion by Arnold Webb, secretary manager of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, that long range planning be undertaken for a system of bridges, tunnels and roads from Sidney through the San Juan Islands to Anacortes.

Mr. Sanderson, an acknowledged expert in his field, pointed out the cost might run to as much as $100,000,000.

TOLL PLAN

"It would depend on the traffic whether or not this outlay could be justified on a toll basis," he said. "As a rough figure, bridges today cost out at about $2,000 per foot, tunnels about $6,000 per foot."

Initial surveys to test footings for bridges and borings for tunnels would run upwards of $1,000,000, he said.

"But I have no doubt the project would be possible if the money were available," he stated.

SEVERAL PLANS

Mr. Webb's plan is one of several suggested by Vancouver Island residents to provide a permanent connection between the island and the mainland.

He pointed out today that his suggested route was purely tentative.

"I just want to rouse interest in the plan. It would be up to experts to lay out the exact route," he said.

Mr. Webb's suggestion calls for a toll which would eventually pay off the cost of the bridges and tunnels.

ONE OF LAST SAILING SHIPS TO VISIT CITY

Victoria will get a good look at one of the last of the wind-ships this weekend.

The four-masted Japanese barque Nippon Maru will be at Ogden Point from about 8:30 a.m. Saturday to 9:30 Tuesday, when she sails for Vancouver.

Used as a training ship for merchant navy cadets, Nippon Maru will represent the Japanese government at B.C.'s centenary.

She was originally scheduled to arrive here in mid-July, but the date was advanced to conform with her training commitments.

Nippon Maru will be open to public inspection from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday. At 8:30 p.m., cadets and seamen will demonstrate sail handling, including manning the yards, raising and lowering sail while the ship is alongside.

KIWANIS DONATE $14,000 FOR AGED CITIZENS' HOUSING

Individual "centennial donations" by members of the Kiwanis Club of Victoria towards enlarged senior citizens' housing project adjoining Kiwanis Village total $14,000.

The money will be used to continue the project through the construction of two four-unit buildings on land recently purchased from the city.

The Village was started in 1953 by a similar personal canvass among the members and since then it has been expanded through donations by citizens and business firms.

Architect Charles E. Craig, who created the plans for the addition, is now calling for tenders.

TO INTERPRET RELICS

Mungo Martin Asked To Oxford Museum

Chief Mungo Martin has been invited to Oxford University when he goes to England next month for the presentation of B.C.'s centennial gift to Queen Elizabeth—the 100-foot totem pole.

Geoffrey Turner, secretary of the University Museum, one of the world's oldest, wrote to Prof. C. S. Burchill, president of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society, asking him to make arrangements for Mungo to visit Oxford.

He would like the chief to view and interpret a large collection of West Coast Indian relics.

The relics were collected by Capt. James Cook, the first white man to land on Vancouver Island in 1778.

Mr. Turner said he has invited some of Britain's best anthropologists and ethnologists to meet the 78-year-old chief and designer of the Royal Totem Pole.

If the chief is agreeable, he said, he will make arrangements for the chief to appear on television.

Chief Martin, who is traveling to London through the courtesy of a Victoria couple, is scheduled to leave for England in July. He will be accompanied by his granddaughter, Mrs. Henry Hunt, of 942 Caledonia.

The expenses of the elderly Kwakiutl chief are being paid on order by a Victoria-Cook Street meat market, part of a 240,000-pound shipment which arrived in Vancouver this week.

Price per carcass is seven to eight cents less per pound than domestic grades of beef, while edibility is compared with the top brands in domestic beef.

T-bone steaks will sell at around 89 cents, compared with the present $1.07 to $1.19, while the average roast will cost the housewife 10 to 15 cents less per pound.

The shipment is expected to last about two months.

The N.Z. beef was imported due to increasing domestic prices, forced up by a depleted U.S. butcher cattle population, resulting in increased U.S. buying here.

New Zealand Frozen Beef To Cost Less

Frozen beef from New Zealand will enter the market here Thursday or Friday and will sell between five cents and 30 cents a pound cheaper than domestic beef.

Several thousand pounds are on order by a Victoria-Cook Street meat market, part of a 240,000-pound shipment which arrived in Vancouver this week.

School Pupils Give $1,975 to Dime Fund

Some 18,600 Greater Victoria school pupils raised $1,975 to help ailing children as a centennial project, school inspector John Gough announced today.

"That represents slightly more than an average of a dime apiece," he said.

The money, collected during

April, will be added to the centennial commemorative fund being raised by school children across the province.

It will be used to assist the Queen Alexandra Solarium at Mill Bay and the Preventorium in Vancouver. Both medical centres care for children.

BRIDGE-TUNNEL LINK DIAGRAMMED

One of several routes suggested for bridge-tunnel system connecting Island with mainland was put forth by Arnold Webb of Chamber of Commerce,

whose route would link Sidney with Anacortes, largely through U.S. territory. Other proposed routes would be mainly through Canada. (Times Photo.)

Scurrah Still Trying To Get Ships Running

Mayor Percy Scurrah made two urgent attempts today to save many Vancouver Island businesses from doom resulting from the CPR steamships strike.

Chairman of the recently formed strike citizens action committee, the mayor met this morning with the B.C. cabinet.

He told reporters shortly before noon, "We had a very nice interview. They were very cooperative."

The mayor also saw federal Justice Minister Fulton this morning for 20 minutes before he left for Ottawa.

"I'm impressed on him the seriousness of this strike situation all over Vancouver Island," Mayor Scurrah said.

"Mr. Fulton agreed that there was a growing demand throughout Canada for the curbing of strikes in essential services and said he would take up my representations with his colleagues in the cabinet."

Hugh Stephen, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and a committee member, said the half-hour meeting with the cabinet was spent "just chatting" about the situation.

He refused to say whether the talks had raised any hope of a quick settlement to the strike, noting, "the cabinet has always been trying to help."

Also present were Hudson's Bay manager J. H. McKay, William Gilmour of Eaton's, and Sam Lane, proprietor of Ye Olde English Inn.

Earlier, discrepancy between ferry fares on Canada's west and east coasts was one of several strike facets discussed by Works Minister W. N. Chant, five Island MLAs and officials of three seamen's unions this morning.

The meeting was one of two called for today by Saanich MLA John Tisdale.

ALL SIDES THERE

Present with Mr. Tisdale at this morning's meeting in Mr. Chant's office were MLAs George Gregory, Victoria; P. A. Gibbs, Oak Bay; H. J. Bruch, Esquimalt and S. J. Squire, Alberni.

Present on behalf of the union were Norman Cunningham, business agent for the Seafarers' International Union, Richard Greaves, national secretary of the Association of Marine Engineers of Canada, and Captain Jack Leonard, masters' guild business agent.

Mr. Chant was scheduled to meet with CPR officials at 2 p.m. today.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Is there some way small chips or pieces of soap may be put together to form large cakes for easier handling?

A. Any method of melting the soap pieces together satisfactorily will suffice. Perhaps the best way would be to put the chips in a pot on the stove and, when melted, pour into a suitable cardboard container that can be stripped from the hardened soap and thrown away.

Q. I would appreciate it if you would publish the date the federal pension of $40 started; when it changed to $46 and when it changed to $55 a month, E.D.

A. The federal old-age pension of $40 monthly started in January, 1952; it was boosted to $46 in July, 1957, and to $55 in November last year.

Can mother escort bride to altar:

My former husband, whom I divorced some years ago, has never contributed to the sup- port of our daughter who is to be married soon. Although he lives in a nearby town, he will not be pres- ent. I hate to think of my daughter going down the aisle alone. I was wondering if I could give her away, or should I ask my older brother to do it?

Louise Davis answers:

Ask your brother to escort his niece to the altar. You can still "give her away" from your pew by quietly indicating it when the question is asked during the early part of the service. I suggest that you mention this situation to the clergyman ahead of time. At the rehearsal, your brother would be briefed as to when to leave the bride's side and move into the front pew with you. It would be proper for an uncle to give the bride away as well as escort her, but as long as the mother is present there is no reason why she shouldn't do it. Who has a better right? However, I advise against marching down the aisle with your daughter. Your place is in your pew before the proces- sional, even if the bride has to march alone.

You Have to Have 'Heart' To Succeed in Art and Life

When asked what he believes to be the secret of what critics have called "The famous Elman golden tone," the distinguished violinist, Mischa Elman, replied, "Heart! That golden tone isn't just a matter of sound waves. It's a matter of what I, as an artist, feel toward the music and toward the audience as I play the violin, and what those feelings of mine do to listeners."

Mr. Elman believes that this quality of "heart" is the ingredi- ent responsible for making any artist famous and loved. He said, "You can have the finest technician in the world but it is necessary to touch the heart of the listener, to establish per- sonal rapport in order to be loved by audiences."

"They do not come to con- certs to listen to sounds. They come for some kind of an emo- tional uplift and that comes only when the heart is touched. That is as true of writing and the movies as it is of music, as true of paintings as it is of plays."

"This writer believes it to be true of everything. Somehow sincerity and warmth and love of people and life get into music and into the printed word with- out any effort on the creator's part. This is also true in a thousand little ways in every- day life. It affects our friend- ships and family relations and our business successes. If we invest in warmth and keen awareness, life responds so richly and enthusiastically! This makes me think of all of

When it comes to love one must give and give from the heart in order to create any lasting romance. A lot has been said about "teamwork" in mar- riage. Attractive Gail Manning, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. E. Manning, Ripon Road, the Uplands, aspires to become an actress.

Young Victorian Looks Ahead to Stage Career

By JUDY NICHOLSON

All the world has become a stage to Miss Gail Manning! Just returned from 10 months' study at the College of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif., Gail is now a keen student of the drama in all its phases.

She is particularly interested in speech therapy or the study of voice tones; correct usage of words in everyday life and in stage work.

Educated at Norfolk House and Oak Bay High School, this attractive 19-year-old miss entered C of P last fall.

During her school years here, she had shown talent in drama and was interested in that field. Today—after 10 months' intensive study—all Gail can think and talk of is drama, drama, and more drama! She has good reason, too, because during the three semesters at C of P she was connected with eight plays, two of which she took lead parts. She was the defendant in "Witness for the Prosecution" and the good fairy in a children's theatre production, "The Sleeping Beauty."

Gail says: "The plays were open to the public and they were extremely good experience. Our facilities were excellent. We were working in a theatre the size of the Royal Theatre here in Victoria!"

Three more years of study will gain Gail a teaching certificate in speech therapy. "It will be a useful paper to hold," she says. "If I don't make good in acting, I'll have a career to fall back on."

But Gail's great wish is to act. In fact she is so keen she'd be happy even with a "bit" part! And where does she want to make good? "Why in Canada of course!" Plans for her summer at home leave little time for laziness, soaking up the sun. She says, "I've got to study, practice, and act, act, act."

Miss Henderson New Head BPW Club; Officers Named

Miss Lily Henderson was unanimously elected president of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club in annual meeting Monday evening.

Other officers are Miss Vera Beek, first vice-president; Miss Ella Brett, second; Miss Molly Chapple, recording secretary; Mrs. Nell North, corresponding secretary; Miss Jean Smith, treasurer; Miss Hilda Hesson, Miss Ruth Adams, Mrs. Vera Wade, Mrs. Lillian Wright and Miss Elizabeth Riddell, directors.

Retiring president, Mrs. Ruby Masters, was presented with a corsage by Miss Henderson. Delegates named to represent the Victoria Club at the national biennial convention in Edmonton in July were Miss Henderson, Miss Brett and Miss E. L. Forbes.

Plans for a one-day post-convention visit of 1,000 members of United States Federation of Business and Professional Women following that federation's convention in Seattle on July 12 were presented by Mrs. Bessie Smith.

Miss Riddell announced plans to entertain patients of Mount St. Mary's at a garden party in the hospital grounds this Saturday. Sponsoring the party is the Silver Threads group of the club.

Ottawa Visitor

Mr. Frank Leacy, director of research, Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa, has been a visitor in the city, the guest of his mother, Mrs. P. H. Leacy, 250 Government Street. Mr. Leacy leaves Thursday to fly back to Ottawa.

St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, woman's auxiliary branch, Thursday, parish hall, 2.30 p.m.

Dodsworth-Wildig Vows Spoken in St. Mary's

In a lovely setting of pink and white carnations, at St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, Loretta Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. C. Wildig, Transit Road, became the bride of Arthur Noel Dodsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Dodsworth, Yale Street.

Rev. J. Jones conducted the evening ceremony.

The petite dark-haired bride was enchanting as she entered the church on the arm of her father. She wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza en train. The fitted princess line bodice featured a deep scoop neckline with large embroidered flowers touched with pearls. The shirred sleeves were short and her gloves, in matching material, were elbow length. A high coronet of mother-of-pearl sequins held her shoulder-length illusion veil. Wedding gift of the groom, a set of pearl earrings with matching necklace, was worn as jewelry. She carried a cascade of pink roses and white feathered carnations.

ATTENDANTS

Ice blue waist-length gowns of silk organza were worn by Miss Margaret Little, maid of honor, and Miss Carole McClellan. The attractive dresses were fashioned with scooped necklines appliqued with large embroidered flowers. Both attendants wore matching headbands and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Little Frances Dodsworth, sister of the groom, wore a floor-length frock of rosebud pink taffeta, with organza overskirt. It was styled with a tiny cape collar. Her headress was a flowered hat and her bouquet was of pink and white carnations.

Jack Carmichael was best man and ushers were Robert Beevor-Potts, Ernie Dyck and Brian Little.

A three-tier wedding cake centred the bridal table at a reception in Sir William Wallace Room, Holyrood House. It was flanked by pink and white carnations and silver candelabra.

William G. Turner proposed the toast.

For a wedding trip to Banff the new Mrs. Dodsworth donned a centennial blue Blin and Blin fitted suit. Her accessories were in white and she wore a white picture hat. Her corsage was of elfin roses.

GE LESSON By Oswald Jacob

let his opponents play five spades. Since West could not open a heart and the club finesse worked, South brought home his contract. "I would appreciate your comments."

South's bidding was excellent indeed, certainly had reason not to let his opponent play five spades and was fortunate enough to bring home his sl contract.

West's two-spade bid was a slight gamble but it got his side in the right direction. His double of six diamonds was based on hope that he could the way overboard at six spades. Spades is lay down. All West would be the ace of trumps. He set up dummy's heart suit. The player who went wrong. Exports Up, Imports Drop In 4 Months

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada's domestic imports in the first four months of the year totalled $1,441,600,000, down 1.4 per cent from $1,462,500,000 a year earlier, the bureau of statistics has announced.

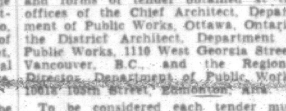

In the month of April alone, however, exports were up slightly to $370,600,000 from last year's $365,300,000.

Re-exports of foreign commodities declined in April to $6,256,000, from $7,210,000 a year ago and in the four-month period to $27,060,000 from $28,474,000.

January-April trade with the United States was virtually unchanged at $864,557,000 compared with $863,956,000 last year. Increased shipments of agricultural and vegetable products, animals and animal products, non-ferrous metals, iron and chemicals all but offset decreases in other major commodity groups.

Exports to the United Kingdom, hit by decreased sales of agricultural and vegetable products and non-ferrous metals, declined in the four months of $207,886,000 from $214,241,000 a year ago. Shipments to the rest of the Commonwealth totalled $209,245,000, up sharply from $69,734,000.

Death Toll Climbs To 3 in Car Crash

OLIVER — A third member of a party of six persons involved in a highway crash Sunday has died in hospital here.

John Carr of Brewster, Wash., driver of the car, died Monday night.

Billie Louie, 36, of the Oliver Reserve, died earlier Monday and Kenneth Philip, 17, of the Penticton Reserve, lived only a short while after the car went off the Okanagan Highway near here.

VIOLENT HAIL STORM
NELSON — A hail storm described as the worst in memory pelted Nelson and district Monday night. Reports indicated damage would run into thousands of dollars.

An estimated 10,000 panes of glass were smashed by hail an inch big.

ARSONIST SOUGHT
VANCOUVER — An intensive search for a suspected arsonist was being conducted today following five overnight fires on the Vancouver waterfront.

Five boxcars and two lumber piles were damaged. One blaze threatened the multi-million-dollar Ballantyne Pier before it was brought under control. Police arrested three suspects.

LAKE DRAGGED
WISTARIA, B.C. — Neighbors and friends searched all day Monday around Ootsa Lake and dragged the lake's underwater forest without finding any trace of two loggers missing and feared drowned.

Victims of a boating accident Sunday night were Neville James Talbot, 26, and Bill Michaylenko, 35. Their 12-foot, outboard-powered boat was found drifting in the lake here an hour after the pair left on a short outing.

PENTICTON — Princess Margaret may take time out from a busy schedule to open the

New Oil, Gas Regulations For NWT Hinted

OTTAWA (CP) — New regulations for oil and gas development in the Northwest Territories may be put into effect in two or three weeks, Northern Affairs Minister Hamilton said today.

Mr. Hamilton declared the regulations are aimed at providing incentive for exploration and had indicated no dissatis and ensuring that as large a fraction part of these resources as possible remains under public ownership.

"Our objective is to see that half the oil and gas remains in the hands of the public," he told the committee on mines, forests and waters.

He said the government had this aim because it is acting in trust for future provinces in the north.

On the other hand, incentive had to be offered to companies if they were to spend many millions of dollars on exploration. It was not an easy problem.

However, he said, the petroleum trade had been shown the regulations in preliminary form and had indicated no dissatis and ensuring that as large a fraction

BID TO END LOCKOUT

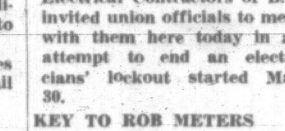

VANCOUVER — Associated Electrical Contractors of B.C. invited union officials to meet with them here today in an attempt to end an electricians' lockout started May 30.

Leon d'Anjou, 28, was arrested Saturday after a citizen saw him moving from meter to meter near the waterfront.

KEY TO ROB METERS
VANCOUVER — A man who said he was saving his stolen money to pay off debts pleaded guilty Monday to stealing from parking meters with a home-made key.

Police arrested three suspects.

Which telephone plan fits your home?

In this single-storey ranch bungalow, three phones answer the family's requirements. The KITCHEN PHONE (1) is located where the housewife spends the greater part of her working day. The BEDROOM PHONE (2) handles calls received while she is working in the bedroom area, and the LIVING ROOM PHONE (3) covers the main family living area. With this telephone plan it's never more than a few steps to a phone from any part of the house.

This house, with its full second-storey, has a stair-climbing problem which has been met by an upstairs phone in the BEDROOM (4). On the main floor there are phones in the LIVING ROOM (1) and KITCHEN (2), while a phone in the DEN (3) gives added privacy when desired. No stair-climbing, no mad dashes to a phone that's too far away for convenience—a good, practical telephone plan.

No stair-climbing in this telephone-planned split-level home, with phones on all three levels. Here the upper level is serviced by a BEDROOM PHONE (3), the middle level by phones in the KITCHEN (1) and LIVING ROOM (2) and the basement level by a PLAYROOM PHONE (4). Working or relaxing, in this home there's always a phone within easy reach.

CHECK YOUR HOME AGAINST THIS TELEPHONE CONVENIENCE LIST

- You need one or more extension phones if:
- ☐ You have to run up or downstairs to answer the phone.
 - ☐ You have to walk more than twenty feet to a phone from any room in the house.
 - ☐ You receive many telephone calls at night.
 - ☐ You receive a number of business calls at home.
 - ☐ You have teen-agers in the family—or small children who must be kept in sight while you answer the phone.
 - ☐ The man of the house is away for long periods, leaving the housewife alone at night.

COLOR PHONES

For an extra touch of glamor, have at least one phone in color. Choose from Turquoise; Sunlight Yellow; Sand Beige; Dawn Grey; Garnet Red; Classic Ivory; Jade Green; Camellia Pink; Gardenia White; Forget-Me-Not Blue. Add a one-time charge of $12 for each color phone—all other charges remain the same.

HOW MUCH WILL TELEPHONE PLANNING COST?

Far less than you'd expect. For example, you could have phones (on a 2-party line) in the kitchen, basement recreation room and master bedroom for only $6.60* per month. Whatever your plan calls for, you can work out the cost very quickly from the following table.

TYPE	PER MONTH
First phone (2-party line)	$4.20*
First phone (private line)	$5.35*
Fixed extension (each)	$1.20*

* Plus Tax

BUILDING OR RE-MODELLING?

Be sure to take advantage of the Telephone Company's free offer to pre-wire your home. All wiring is installed according to your telephone plan before inside walls are finished. There is no charge for this service—you pay only the regular charges when the telephones go into use.

ENGINE STARTED BY SURPRISE

One Boy Escapes Elk Lake Tragedy

By PETE LOUDON

A runaway float plane at Elk Lake Monday night killed one of two boys who started the engine while playing with the controls.

He died instantly, the propeller severing his body below the shoulders.

An inquest will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at McCall Brothers funeral chapel.

The second boy, barely escaping the whirling blades, floundered in the lake for 10 minutes. Police took him to hospital, speechless with shock.

Dead is John Frederick Morrison, 15, of 620 Huxley.

The horrified survivor, Robert Turnbull, 16, of 3843 Rowland, was returned to his home after treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

His shock was reflected throughout Victoria today.

PIECED TOGETHER

From his account of the tragedy, and the stories told by two eye-witnesses who saw the accident from across the lake, police deduce the following:

John and Robert had been working all day at a berry farm. Returning home at about 5:45 p.m. they skirted the west shore of Elk Lake.

They saw the plane, moored about 25 feet from shore near a float recently installed by the newly-formed Victoria Float-Plane Owners' Association.

A flat-bottom skiff, said to belong to a Bert Rogers, was tied to the float.

Robert told police: "We decided to have a look inside the plane."

He said it was open.

IN THE COCKPIT

(Later, plane-owner Victor Dawson, local electrical contractor, of Sluggert Road, said the plane was locked. "I have witnesses to that.")

Robert got inside the two-seater aircraft. John was partly in the cockpit, trying to hold the boat at the same time.

"We were touching everything," the police quoted Robert. Without any warning, the plane started, he told them.

John climbed from the plane on one side, apparently trying to get into the boat.

Robert jumped out the other side and swam for shore. He did not see what happened to John. He never saw him again.

The plane, with throttle apparently wide open, circled wildly, tugging against its mooring line. Twice it charged on Robert as he swam. Once it pinned him under its pontoons.

TREES MINCED

The plane plunged and dipped, circling three times. It scooped the small skiff on top of its pontoons. One bite of the propeller ate a section out of the after, thwart. Then it broke loose and charged into the shoreline brush, mincing trees and bushes into pulp.

When police arrived, the plane was still sawing into the trees. The boat was across the pontoons.

The severed body lay partly on the shore.

B.C. Deal Set With Ottawa On Road Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has reached "complete agreement in substance" with British Columbia and Saskatchewan on construction of access roads to resource areas, Northern Affairs and Resources Minister Hamilton said today.

Mr. Hamilton gave the information to the Commons committee on mines, forests and waters.

He said he has formally advised the two provinces that they can go ahead with their programs under joint federal participation.

Plane Owner 'Thanks God' It Stayed Down

The distraught owner of a float plane which ran amok on Elk Lake thanked God today it didn't take off.

"It was a miracle the plane didn't take off and crash across the lake on swimmers or homes," said Victor Dawson, Sluggert Road, Central Saanich electrical contractor.

"At that speed, she'd have been off the water in 100 yards," he added. Luckily, the thin mooring line held. The plane, after striking a boy dead, nosed into the treed lakeside, killing its engine in a flurry of chips and sawdust.

Mr. Dawson said he was leading a sing-song at a Rotary meeting when police informed him two boys had started his plane, and one had been killed by the propeller. Police had searched over three hours for Mr. Dawson.

The owner was puzzled how untrained youths could start the plane. The motor was 24-hours cold. Fine priming adjustments would be necessary.

"You'd have to put a 40-pound pull on the starter."

He said his plane was locked, but a window was apparently "jimmied."

There were warning signs to trespassers on both the plane and a nearby tree. The seat of a boat used by the boys also bore notice to "keep away."

"But I'd rather give them the airplane than see something like this happen," added Mr. Dawson. He is a member-director of the Victoria Float-Plane Owners' Association. His plane is an Aerona sedan. He flew it here from Red Lake, Ont., in March.

Mr. Dawson said he appreciated boys' curiosity about planes.

"I've often taken youngsters up, when they have their parents' written permission. Damage to the plane may go as high as $1,000. The engine will have to be removed before it can be assessed."

Hot Dispute Over Planes On Elk Lake

Monday's tragic death of a 16-year-old boy in the spinning propeller of a float plane on Elk Lake came in the midst of a months-long argument between City Hall and the owner of the aircraft.

Only hours before the freak accident, the city legal department mailed a letter to the Department of Transport as part of an intensive study to determine how much control the city has over the lake.

The argument began April 21 when Victor Dawson, president of the Victoria Float Plane Owners' Association, headed a delegation that asked Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee for permission to establish a non-commercial float plane base on Elk Lake.

EDGELOW ALONE

The committee turned down the application after strong objections were taken by Saanich councillors George Chatterton and George Austin that aircraft would menace swimmers in the lake. Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was the only committee member who voted for it.

22 RESCUED FROM PLANE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI)—The air ministry announced that all 22 persons were rescued from an Argentine State Airlines plane that crashed into the Atlantic near Rio today.

The plane, a DC-6, went into the sea around 11:30 a.m. some 70 miles southwest of here.

Sommers Facing 22nd Day of Trial

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Crown began presenting more documentary evidence today in its 38-count bribery-conspiracy case involving former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers and others.

Special prosecutor Victor Dryer had George Davenport, former accountant with C. D. Schultz Company, called to the stand. He then presented for Davenport's identification various ledger books, vouchers, Schultz Company cheques for varying amounts and other records of the timber engineering firm.

Davenport, who left the Schultz firm in March, 1955, and now is secretary-treasurer of Bralorne Mines, took the box in the 22nd day of the trial.

The day marked the end of testimony by the Crown's chief witness, Charles Eversfield, who was excused after appearing briefly for his 12th day. The Crown's case is mainly built on documents Eversfield took from the files of Pacific Coast Services Limited when he quit his bookkeeper's job there in March, 1955.

The trial resumed after a brief adjournment Monday because of the illness of one of three

Algeria 'Rebels' Threaten Split With de Gaulle

PARIS (CP)—French insurgents in Algeria threatened a break with Premier Charles de Gaulle today as he strove to untangle France from a snarl of domestic and foreign problems.

A communique from the All Algeria Committee of Public Safety opposed his plan for local elections in Algeria within a month and demanded a house-cleaning of political parties in France.

The communique was met with official silence here, but it was unofficially reported to have stirred up a deep suspicion that the Algerian right-wingers want nothing less than one-party rule in France.

The committee—formed after the May 13 revolt in Algiers—still holds extensive power in the French North African colony despite de Gaulle's notice to its leaders to relinquish their ruling role.

De Gaulle today outlined his plans for stabilizing the French economy in separate talks with union leaders and employers.

The general told a delegation from the Catholic Trade Union Federation he wants labor given legislative, and not merely consultative powers.

De Gaulle also met a delegation from the powerful French Employers' Association under President Georges Villiers.

Villiers said he told the premier: "We believe in expansion. It may have to be a little slower than in the past as we have been growing too fast."

Ike Offers Atom Meet On July 1

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower proposed today to Soviet Premier Khrushchev that technical talks begin July 1 in Geneva on methods of policing any possible future ban on nuclear tests.

The White House made public a letter from the president stating the Swiss government has agreed to the Geneva site, which Eisenhower said would be preferable to Moscow from the U.S. viewpoint.

Khrushchev in agreeing to such talks had suggested they be held in his own capital.

Eisenhower told the Russian premier the U.S. would not object to the inclusion of experts from Czechoslovakia and Poland on Russia's side.

The Western powers participating, he said, would be the United Kingdom, France, the U.S. and possibly other countries.

Eisenhower noted Khrushchev has indicated Russia would not object to the inclusion of additional Western nations having experts in nuclear test detection.

With respect to neutrals, Eisenhower told the Russian premier "we have no objection in principle to their joining later in the discussions if it is agreed during the course of the talks that this is necessary or useful."

INDIA TO JOIN IN?

That might let such countries as India into the talks.

Eisenhower suggested provision should be made for the talks to continue slightly longer than the three or four weeks which Khrushchev had suggested earlier in the Eisenhower-Khrushchev exchange.

This might be advisable to resolve the complex technical questions involved, Eisenhower said.

The presidential letter said: "These talks would be undertaken without commitment as to the final decision on the relationship of nuclear test suspension to other more important disarmament measures I have proposed."

British Prime Minister Macmillan, here to confer with Eisenhower, had been informed of the contents of the reply.

Sandys Urges New Arms Bid Through UN

LONDON (UPI)—Britain today proposed a new try at breaking the East-West disarmament deadlock through establishment of a powerful "world security authority" under the United Nations.

Defence Minister Duncan Sandys spelled out the idea in Parliament.

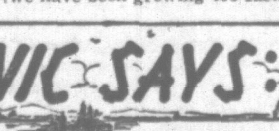

Sandys suggested that East and West go back to the UN charter and start from there in accepting a "general agreement for the prevention of war."

De Gaulle today outlined his plans for stabilizing the French economy in separate talks with union leaders and employers.

The general told a delegation from the Catholic Trade Union Federation he wants labor given legislative, and not merely consultative powers.

De Gaulle also met a delegation from the powerful French Employers' Association under President Georges Villiers.

Villiers said he told the premier: "We believe in expansion. It may have to be a little slower than in the past as we have been growing too fast."

The way them Algerian insurgents is talkin' now, they'd like to see all de Gaulle divided in three parts.

One thing about our cousins 't' th' South, they let y' know what they're goin' 't' do in plenty o' time for You Know Who 't' do it first.

If th' movies are through with th' Bridge on the River Kwai we'd use it on the Georgia Strait.

Moon-Rocket Try Planned for August

U.S. Said Aiming Three Attempts

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson, director of air research and development command, said today that the U.S. Air Force will "shoot for the Moon" in August.

Gen. Anderson told a press conference the air force will fire three "lunar probes" this year. The others are scheduled for September and October, he added.

He declined to disclose the size or weight of the payload the air force hopes to deliver. It will not be instrumented and will be intended simply to crash on the moon, he said, giving "some indication" of its arrival.

Three-stage rockets whose main power plants at takeoff will be modified Thor missiles that will propel the projectiles over a 278,000-mile course to the moon in 2½ days, Anderson said.

The Thor is a 1,500-mile-range weapon. At least 13 have been test fired and of these at least five have been successful.

Anderson said that even if the rockets miss the moon, they will become "real interesting scientific satellites" because their elliptical orbits will carry them far out into space and possibly around the moon and earth in a sort of figure eight.

(Roy W. Johnson, director of the defence department's advanced research projects agency, claimed in commenting on Lt. Gen. Anderson's statement, that no final decision on moon rockets had been made.)

'To Peace by Easy Steps' Mac's Aim

BALTIMORE (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan called today for a start toward building world peace through a "little by little" approach to discarding all big weapons—atomic and others.

Macmillan addressed commencement exercises at Johns Hopkins University where he and President Eisenhower were given honorary degrees by the school.

Macmillan said the Western alliance has served well and must be continued as a shield against Communist aggression.

He said, "I am not without hope."

RCN Boosts Order For Sub Killers

Saanich constable Bob Kirby found Robert.

"He had apparently swum out again after the struggle to avoid the plane. He must have been in the water 10 minutes and was considerably north of the plane when he came out. He was suffering from shock and couldn't talk."

"I HEARD IT"

Across the north arm of the lake, two schoolboys watched the tragedy without realizing its seriousness.

Frank Gibbons, 18, of 356 Brookleigh, was doing his homework three-quarters of a mile from the plane when "I heard it rev up..."

He went outside to watch the plane take off, he said.

"It was circling counter-clockwise, in circles 150 feet in diameter, and appeared definitely out of control."

It started a fourth circle, "... then it hit the boat. There was a shower of reddish-brown color which almost obliterated the plane—then it went round again, straightened out and went into the shore, and continued running there for 15 minutes."

THOUGHT IT WAS FIRE

"I thought he was on fire. I went and got my car. I saw police cars and knew someone had reported it. I told police what I'd seen and took them to Mr. Leckie's home (Ernest Leckie, 535 Brookleigh), who has a powerboat. His son and an officer went over in the boat and tried to shut the engine off. The engine stalled of its own accord as it chewed into a heavy tree branch."

Robert "Butch" Cleland, 15, of 5020 Westleigh, was collecting on his paper route, also across the lake from the plane.

"I saw them move it so it faced out. I thought it was going to take off and thought I'd watch it."

"They started the engine up and it sounded full tilt right away. It started going in circles. Then I saw the shower of red... I got on my bike and rode over here right away."

"I was the first one here. The engine was still running and the plane was advancing slowly into the bush. I saw the body. I was just going to get the police. I got up the road and saw two police cars coming in..."

MANY MORE CALLS

Constables Kirby and Ted Owens were first to arrive. They couldn't get near the plane until it stopped itself. They said numerous anonymous calls were received by the police, the first at 6:05 p.m.

After rushing Robert to hospital, Saanich police set about the task of recovering the body of the dead boy. Grappling hooks and lamps were unsuccessful throughout the night.

Today, RCN skin divers assisted.

Mother of the dead boy, Mrs. Flora Morrison, collapsed when police brought her news of the tragedy.

"If you have any children," she sobbed, "take care of them while they are in their teens. They are very hard to keep track of..."

John, a student at McKenzie Ave. School until he started work recently, would have been 16 in October.

HERO OF RESCUE

There are six surviving brothers and sisters: Mrs. Herbert Barker; Herbert, Jimmy at home; Alan Morrison of Kemp Road, Sooke; Mrs. R. W. Davis of Vancouver, and Mrs. Joan McGraw of Langford.

Robert Turnbull was in the news last year when he helped rescue a boy from the Gorge. On June 19, 1957, he was one of three boys who rescued David Harvey, 18, 318 Uganda, who was almost drowned when he fell into the Gorge near the bridge at Tillicum Road.

Robert attended S. J. Willis School until just over a year ago.

1,726 Register For Grade One

Some 1,726 Greater Victoria children have been registered for Grade One classes this fall, school inspector John Gough said today.

In addition, 1,069 children have been registered for entry into nine kindergarten classes the Greater Victoria School Board hopes will be available this year.

Mr. Gough said current attendance in Grade One classes is 2,006 and "we expect to approach that figure when all the registrations for the fall are in."

He added that all parents who intend to enter their children in the school system for the first time this year should fill out registration forms immediately at the nearest elementary school.

The Royal Canadian Navy has been authorized to place orders for six new anti-submarine destroyers, instead of the four announced earlier.

The announcement was made at Ottawa today by George R. Pearkes, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, and welcomed here by shipbuilders who expressed hopes at least two of the six would come to Island yards.

Mr. Pearkes said the first keel in the new program would be laid this fall, but it was not decided which Canadian shipyard would be given the job.

Local shipbuilders said that if contracts were awarded here, benefit in terms of jobs would not be felt for at least a year.

Meanwhile a spokesman for Yarrows Ltd. said 100 men were being laid off today on a temporary basis.

Layoff is necessary because of re-evaluation of the refit work being carried out on the coastal escort Winnipeg, contract for which was awarded several months ago to help keep the yard's work force together.

It is hoped the men will be recalled within a short time.

Yarrow's work force now stands at about 170.

pointed out. The modern submarine which the Russians had in large quantity were capable of cruising for long periods and could be stationed offshore to launch nuclear missiles against cities that were inland or on the shore.

GRAVE THREAT

The role of the Canadian Navy had been also switched. No longer was the emphasis on convoy duty, but on hunting out and destroying submarine packs, the minister said.

"One of the most important tasks confronting the NATO commanders will be to prevent the emergence of the Russian submarines into the Atlantic Ocean. Great importance is attached to maintaining effective control between Greenland and Iceland and between Iceland and Norway," he added.

The submarines constituted a grave threat to NATO convoys and surface warships but also posed a threat against Canadian and United States shores, he stressed.

The Royal Canadian Navy after it has served its role of hunting down and destroying submarines in the initial phases of the war will convert to the role of escort duty after the nuclear battles have been won, the minister said.

ber favoring the application, arguing that the base should be allowed at least for the winter months.

Three days later city council confirmed the committee's rejection of the application, over the protests of Ald. Edgewood.

Mr. Dawson, owner of the death craft, informed City Hall May 26 that the association intended to go ahead and use the lake anyway, operating from privately-owned frontage.

(The city owns only 90 per cent of the Lake frontage.)

"Elk Lake is presently represented on the international air maps of the world as an unrestricted area and it therefore is open to all pilots," Mr. Dawson wrote.

"Since your council has indicated through its reply that it is unable to co-operate in making available a portion of the city-owned property of the lake for this purpose, we are presently preparing for use a piece of property on the west side, clear of all obstructions."

STILL UNDER STUDY

The city legal department was instructed to make a thorough investigation of the city's powers over use of the lake when Mr. Dawson's letter was received. The subject is still under study.

Mayor Percy Scurrell and Ald. M. H. Mooney, chairman of the beaches and parks committee, both indicated today the matter was up to the department of transport.

But Coun. Chatterton called upon the people of Saanich for united action to stop Elk Lake from being used by aircraft or speedboats.

Unless they are controlled, "they will, with time, take over the lake and there will be more accidents with the area losing its recreational value," he said.

Mayor Scurrell said council had dealt with the situation as far as it could but "we can't control it. It's my understanding that it comes under the transport department."

Ald. Mooney said the D.O.T. "is the group that will have the final say on whether aircraft can be barred from the lake."

"I don't think council can discuss it until we have all the facts regarding the legality of aircraft using the lake."

Bombs Fly in Beirut

MAZATLAN, Mexico (AP)—An open-air bus loaded with a weekend crowd overturned and burned on a bridge near here Monday, killing 17 persons and injuring about 20.

A SURVIVOR IN THE RUINS

TORONTO (CP)—An elderly woman was led from her blast-shattered Bathurst Street apartment Monday night muttering: "Oh, my poor..."

Rescuers couldn't make out the name she was saying and at first feared a visitor was trapped in the ruins. When the woman recovered from shock she told them she was worried about her pet canary.

A few hours later a digger searching for missing apartment dwellers uncovered a bird cage, twisted and crushed under the debris.

In it cowered the woman's canary—dusty but unharmed.

One Dead as Block Blows Up

TORONTO (CP)—A violent explosion knifed upwards from a basement boiler room and blew out the side of a four-storey brick apartment building on north-end Bathurst Street Monday night.

One torn body was recovered from the rubble today after an all-night search by workers who feared at one time that eight persons were trapped in the massive tangle of bricks, mortar and shattered furnishings.

John Armstrong, 53, superintendent of the 39-year-old building at 1600 Bathurst Street, north of St. Clair Avenue, was found dead under a mound of rubble in his basement dwelling. Just before the body was recovered police located Mrs. M. McGee and student Len Bartlett, the last of seven persons earlier believed to be in the ruins.

Firemen and steel-helmeted construction crews continued to dig out the wreckage in case visitors to the building had been caught by the blast, which collapsed sections of all four floors.

Deputy Police Chief Joe Thurston, in charge of the search, said diggers uncovered a ripped-open furnace boiler which appeared to have been the origin of the terrific explosion.

Despite the heavy damage there were few injuries to occupants. Mrs. Mabel Vicary, 57, Mrs. Ella Aldridge, 72, and Robert Veitch, 71, were treated at hospital for shock, cuts and bruises.

Police said 39 of the building's 48 occupants were in their apartments when the blast roared through the floors, peeling off most of the south wall.

Owner William Isbitzer, who valued the building at $250,000, said it will have to be demolished.

and baring a dozen apartments to the streets.

Fire officials said tenants told them Armstrong was working on a furnace boiler Monday night with a plumber.

One official said an attempt may have been made to test the boiler without water in the heating system. Opening a valve to put water in the system could have resulted in cold water entering the hot boiler—the recipe for a giant explosion.

The Most Grateful Rider

BECAUSE I'm credulous, I've always accepted the statement that the greatest mechanical development of all time was the invention of the wheel.

Two to three hours after the first riders had flashed over the finish line in our 100-mile centennial bike race on Saturday, I began to have doubts. I'd had about all the wheels I wanted for some time to come. Had anyone asked me about this prehistoric invention, I'd have glared at him in stony silence. That way you can't be misquoted.

Sure it was a great race. It was a privilege to work on it. But wheels, wheels, wheels. I felt like a kid who'd just dismantled a clock and been told to put it together again.

In bike races, as in all things, the best laid plans, etc. It was that way at the prize presentation. Lawrie Wallace was to give the awards from Nanaimo, Chemainus and Duncan to their respective winners. Only Lawrie had also to be on a plane for Vancouver when the presentations were under way.

So we ran in the reserves and stitched up that little tear in the arrangements. Then there was a mild disagreement with certain boys on how one little feature of the wind-up should go. I'd just told them to stop talking while their elder spoke. They fooled me by stopping.

UNNERVING

That's unnerving. Around home the louder I shout "Shut up," the louder people ignore me. I'd just come from the shattering experience of being listened to, when I bumped into another bike-rider. By then my nerves were a bit frayed.

"And what," I asked in what I hope wasn't too waspish a tone, "can I do for you? Are you looking for a prize?"

"Nope," said the rider, "I'm Dick Duncan."

I just came in. And I sure could do with a wash."

So we headed for the showers at the back of the shop. That isn't a 100-mile journey, but it's quite a way. I forgot for the moment that he'd just ridden down from Qualicum, until he said:

"Shall we take it a little slower on these stairs. My legs aren't ready for fast walking yet."

We slowed down and I asked him how he'd done on the Malahat.

"Walked up," he said. "You see, I used to do my bike riding when Torchy was racing around here. That's a while ago. But the Legion boys at Chemainus fixed me up with an outfit and I had to justify their action by finishing the race."

OLD TIMES BOY

We were sauntering down our last mile to the showers, and Dick was taking in the sights in the composing room.

"You know," he remarked, "I used to deliver the Times about thirty-four years ago. Sure had a good crowd."

Finally we reached the washroom and I untied his shoes because his legs were getting a little stiff.

Ten minutes later he was back in my office.

"You think I could have a look at the paper?" he asked, and I gave him a couple "Boy," he said, "that was some bike race. It's kinda nice coming in here too. That's the Times for you. They treat you right."

I've been thinking about Dick since he left. We "treated him right" by giving him a cheerful greeting, a hot shower, a couple of newspapers and the same treatment accorded all the other riders—who also seemed well pleased.

I'm happy that I ran into him when I did. Men like him are a tonic. They're rich because they're grateful for small considerations. They help to restore your faith in humanity and other things.

Maybe the invention of the wheel is the greatest mechanical development of all time after all.

YOUR HEALTH

Baldness

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Why do so many men lose their hair fairly early in life? There are a number of factors. The most important is, first, maleness, because few women get bald in the way a man does, and no woman gets a shiny bald head, with a fringe of good hair about it. The next big factor is heredity; all of us know men with a shiny bald head who have sons who, by the age of 35, have a shiny bald head. Other men who have a fuzzy bald head may have sons with a fuzzy bald head.

Getting back to the factor of sex, it has been known since ancient times that the eunuchs of the Orient—men who, early in life, were castrated so that they could be put in charge of a king's harem—never got bald. As long as they lived, they had a perfect head of hair. Similarly, a man who in early life loses most of his testicular tissue during an attack of mumps, and for the rest of his days is "eunuchoid," with a short trunk, long legs, a wide pelvis, and often a small pale wrinkled face, usually has a fine head of hair all his days. Many of these men don't even get gray. I have read that if an eunuch is given enough male hormone for a long enough time he may start getting bald.

There is another factor in producing baldness, and that is race. There are some races of men, like the Ainu of Japan, so hairy that among them baldness is rare. According to Drs. L. Synder and H. Yingling, over 40 per cent of American men of 35 years of age and older are likely to get somewhat bald. About 8 per cent of women tend to lose their hair for a while, as after a nervous shock, or an operation, or the bearing of a child. Usually, the hair starts coming out in handfuls just three months after the shock, which so seriously injured the hair follicles that the hairs died. The reason that this hair comes out after three months is that it takes three months for the new growing hair to push the old dead hair out, just as it takes a new thumbnail many weeks to push an old dead thumbnail out after it was caught in the door or pounded with a hammer. If people only knew this, they could save themselves a lot of money and trouble going to a hair quack.

Years ago, the great French skin specialist, Sabouraud, spent much of his life studying baldness. He found that in most cases, men who are losing their hair have some dandruff, and usually some bacterial infection of the scalp. For years, dermatologists (skin specialists) have tried to blame baldness on one of the germs they found in hair follicles, but without much success.

They have prescribed shampoos, antiseptic lotions and antiseptic and stimulating ointments, plus massage and glandular hormones, but nothing has succeeded in producing more than a little fuzz on the scalp.

Years ago, a committee on cosmetics of the American Medical Association, after much research, wrote a booklet in which they admitted that they had found nothing that would grow real hair on a bald head. A few men, for a while, thought that the loss of hair might be due to too much tension in the scalp, but this theory did not hold up. Other men blamed a poor circulation in the scalp, while others blamed the wearing of tight hats, but today one can see any number of men who, in spite of going about always without a hat, are bald. In recent years, men have claimed that exposure of the scalp to the sun would cause the hair to grow; but we know now that this isn't so.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Plants Can Be Kept in Flower

Comparatively few home gardeners realize the length of time plants will continue to flower if fading blooms are promptly removed.

We know that the production of flowers is one step toward the production of seed, and that seeds start forming as a flower passes its prime.

When we consider the potential power which is packed into a seed no larger than the head of a pin, or maybe as fine as a grain of dust, it gradually dawns on us that the production of millions must weaken a plant.

Because of the amount of energy used in producing seed, plants will cease to make more flowers when a few blooms have been pollinated and seeds start to form.

The main purpose of flowering plants in a garden is not to provide seed but to provide a brilliant display of color for as long a period as possible.

If seed is prevented from forming and maturing, the plant will produce more flowers in a vain attempt to make seed, and so serve its garden purpose the better.

With fully double flowers which do not habitually form seed, the removal of faded flowers will also lengthen the period of bloom. In this instance, cutting the stem back its full length stimulates further flower stems to form and grow. One year we grew the so-called Esther Read daisy (Chrysanthemum maximum var. "Esther Read") for market cut flowers. The regular twice-a-week picking of blooms resulted in almost continuous flowering through June, July and August.

There was even a bonus crop in fall after a month's rest. Gardeners have been heard to say the work of removing the blossoms consumes too much time. That is true if it is left for a certain day or time. But a few minutes spent two or three times a day, as a rest between regular household jobs, keeps the plants well cleared of past-prime flowers.

Inco Metals at work in Canada

To help insure the purity of the milk you drink, the tanks on most modern dairy tank trucks are made of stainless steel containing about 8% nickel. The stainless steel for these tanks is manufactured right here in Canada from nickel supplied by Inco. In Sudbury, Ontario, Inco workmen mine, mill and smelt the nickel-bearing ore. Then it goes to Inco's Port Colborne plant for refining. The refined nickel is sold to a Canadian steel company for the production of stainless steel. And Canadian fabricators use this nickel-containing stainless steel in the manufacture of dairy tank trucks and many other products.

There's INCO NICKEL in modern stainless steel dairy tank trucks... and it helps keep your milk pure.

STAINLESS STEEL is a modern miracle metal. It resists rust and corrosion. It won't stain or tarnish. It has a bright, shiny surface that is easy to keep clean.

No wonder so many modern housewives want stainless steel sinks in their kitchens... stainless steel tableware in their dining rooms. Architects have used stainless steel for years to brighten and beautify the interiors of the buildings they design... and now they're using it for the exterior walls of buildings. Food processing industries depend on it to help keep their products pure.

Take the dairy industry, for example. Modern farms and dairies are now using stainless steel equipment for handling and processing milk. The milk seldom touches anything but stainless steel from milking to bottling time. Even the tanks on the huge trucks that haul milk from the farm to the dairy are made with stainless steel to protect the milk from contamination.

These dairy tank trucks are manufactured in Canada. The stainless steel that goes into them is also produced in Canada. Most of the stainless steel made in Canada for dairy equipment contains Inco Nickel. Another example of the way Inco metals serve the Canadian industries that serve you.

'IF MONEY AVAILABLE, IT CAN BE BUILT'

Island-Hopping Road Feasible, Says Expert

An island-hopping highway to connect Vancouver Island with the mainland is feasible from an engineering standpoint, an expert said here today.

A. B. Sanderson, engineering consultant whose projects include the new Point Ellice Bridge, said the obstacles to building the necessary bridges and tunnels would be economic, rather than engineering.

"If the money is available, almost anything can be built," he said.

Mr. Sanderson was commenting on a suggestion by Arnold Webb, secretary manager of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, that long range planning be undertaken for a system of bridges, tunnels and roads from Sidney through the San Juan Islands to Anacortes.

Mr. Sanderson, an acknowledged expert in his field, pointed out the cost might run to as much as $100,000,000.

TOLL PLAN

"It would depend on the traffic whether or not this outlay could be justified on a toll basis," he said. "As a rough figure, bridges today cost out at about $2,000 per foot, tunnels about $6,000 per foot."

Initial surveys to test footings for bridges and borings for tunnels would run upwards of $1,000,000, he said.

"But I have no doubt the project would be possible if the money were available," he stated.

SEVERAL PLANS

Mr. Webb's plan is one of several suggested by Vancouver Island residents to provide a permanent connection between the Island and the mainland.

He pointed out today that his suggested route was purely tentative.

"I just want to rouse interest in the plan. It would be up to experts to lay out the exact route," he said.

Mr. Webb's suggestion calls for a toll which would eventually pay off the cost of the bridges and tunnels.

ONE OF LAST SAILING SHIPS TO VISIT CITY

Victoria will get a good look at one of the last of the wind-ships this weekend.

The four-masted Japanese barque Nippon Maru will be at Ogden Point from about 8:30 a.m. Saturday to 9:30 Tuesday, when she sails for Vancouver.

Used as a training ship for merchant navy cadets, Nippon Maru will represent the Japanese government at B.C.'s centenary.

She was originally scheduled to arrive here in mid-July, but the date was advanced to conform with her training commitments.

Nippon Maru will be open to public inspection from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday. At 8:30 p.m., cadets and seamen will demonstrate sail handling, including manning the yards, raising and lowering sail while the ship is alongside.

He had many technical papers to his credit, and was a member of the Victoria chapter of the Canadian Authors' Association, and a member of the Royal Society of Arts.

Since 1950, he had attended two conferences in Europe of the International Labor Organization as a representative of Canadian industry.

He lived here at 759 Mountjoy Avenue.

Survivors include three sons, Donald, in Ontario; Frank, in Point Clare, Quebec, and Heath, in Montreal.

Funeral will be at 3:15 p.m. Friday, conducted by Hayward's, from St. Matthias Church, with Ven. Archdeacon A. E. deL. Nunns officiating.

RAF 4-Jet Vulcans Coming

Demonstration flights and ground displays will be given by two four-jet Vulcan delta-wing aircraft of the British Bomber Command this month when they attend B.C. centennial celebrations.

The program includes a "static" display at the Comox RCAF base June 17, a flypast over Abbotsford the previous day, and a static display at Vancouver's Sea Island Airport on Air Force Day, Saturday.

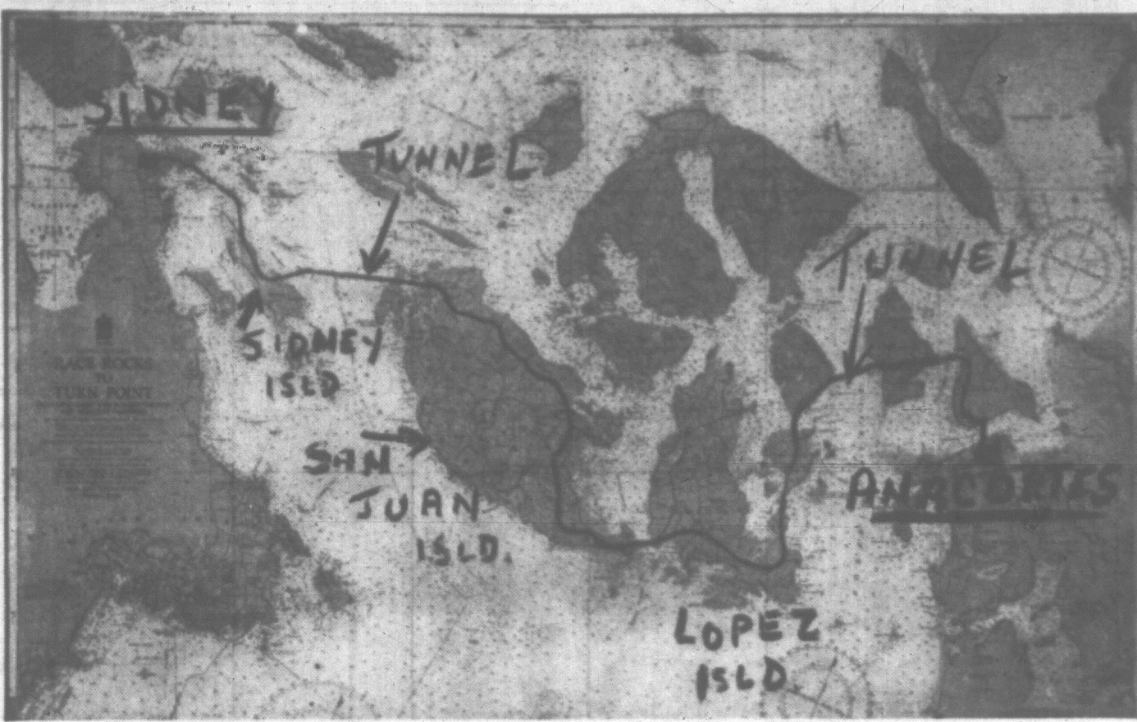

The Avro Vulcan is the largest delta aircraft in the world. It went into service with the RAF two years ago.

a four-engine Handley Page Hastings from RAF Transport Command.

Force commander will be Air Vice-Marshal G. A. Walker, CBE, DSO, DFC, AFC, air officer commanding No. 1 Bomber Group and co-pilot of one of the Vulcans.

The Vulcans leave Waddington, Lincolnshire, June 12, and the Hastings leaves the same base June 9.

BRIDGE-TUNNEL LINK DIAGRAMMED

One of several routes suggested for bridge-tunnel system connecting Island with mainland was put forth by Arnold Webb of Chamber of Commerce,

whose route would link Sidney with Anacortes, largely through U.S. territory. Other proposed routes would be mainly through Canada. (Times Photo.)

Scurrah Still Trying To Get Ships Running

Mayor Percy Scurrah made two urgent attempts today to save many Vancouver Island businesses from doom resulting from the CPR steamships strike.

Chairman of the recently formed strike citizens action committee, the mayor met this morning with the B.C. cabinet.

He told reporters shortly before noon, "We had a very nice

The Battle of the Chairs was fought out in the austere CCF building at 721 Courtney Street Sunday night.

Victoria Humanists raided every room in the building for their overflow meeting on the ground floor. Then the Western Dance Club moved in on the floor above and created the dickens of a noise bringing in chairs from other rooms.

Dr. R. J. Wride, president of Victoria Rotary Club, asked Mayor Percy Scurrah, also a Rotarian, what he had done with the mammoth cheese presented to him by Mayor L. T. LaVigne of Cornwall Ont.

"You birds are not going to get it," the mayor replied. "It has been cut up into one-pound pieces and given to the surplus food stores."

H. K. Winthrop of Victoria revisited his native Edinburgh recently and noted with surprise that the grim six-storey Scotsman building had been fitted with an elevator.

This innovation is the work of Toronto publisher Roy Thomson, who shocked all Scotland by buying the Scotsman in 1954, and now has a family tartan to go with it. In the old days, says Mr. Winthrop, the publishers would not have an elevator at any price. It was too expensive and they considered the exercise good for the staff.

However, the top executive floor stands level with a bridge and, because of it, one old publisher dodged the upward climb. He worked his way down through the departments to the printing plant on the lower level, then took the street car back up the hill to his office.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Lower Vancouver Island Goat Breeders' Association will hold a kid show at the Saanich fair grounds starting at 11 a.m. Saturday.

It will be the first show of its kind held here since 1945.

Barber shop owners of Victoria at a meeting Monday night decided to remain closed all day Wednesday.

There had been some talk the shops might change their closing date to Monday.

A new hours schedule was passed. In future shops will open at 8:30 and close at 5:30.

Saanich Council Monday rejected an Imperial Oil Ltd. application to rezone the southeast corner of Patricia Bay Highway and Ralph Street for service station use.

It also turned down the application of Robert A. Watt to rezone four lots facing the Trans-Canada Highway and Regina Avenue to permit the construction of a motel. The area is now zoned for light industry.

Council action was based on recommendations of the Saanich town planning commission.

A "Garden Lighting" contest will be held by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce on the weekend of July 12.

The contest is being arranged as a Centennial event, and especially for the visit of Princess Margaret.

Entry forms will be available at the Jaycee offices, 816 Wharf Street, after June 15, and prizes for the top five contestants will be different-sized centennial plaques.

The 30-piece band of the 24th Medium A/A Regiment, Trail, now taking summer training at Albert Head, will play a one-hour concert from 7:30 p.m. today prior to sunset ceremonies on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

John Weldon, 675 Lampson, was found not guilty of impaired driving following trial in city police court today.

He was accused after he collided with a parked car on Oak Bay Avenue on May 25.

Three radishes, strung like a necklace on one root, were dug up by Mrs. Ken Walker, 20 Seaford Road, this week.

Mrs. Walker said the radishes were normal in all other respects.

Life in Victoria and in the province will be accentuated in 12 new sections of floral arrangements of the Victoria Horticultural Society's summer show at the Crystal Garden, June 27 and 28.

The new sections commemorating the B.C. Centennial will be: Past, natural resources, native plants, Garry oaks, modern home, churches, hospitality, shops, hospitals, public gardens, sports and roses.

Continue Try To Tell U.S. Island 'Open'

Victoria Chamber of Commerce today continued its efforts to dispell the idea Vancouver Island is isolated.

Over 1,000 hotels and motels in the Puget Sound area are being mailed ferry and airline schedules, for the convenience of their patrons.

Chamber of Commerce members are to receive letters urging them to add the following postscript to all mail sent out by their firms:

"Everything helps you to reach Victoria—plenty of ferries, planes, good roads at all times."

Chamber representatives are also working on a gala welcome for the first Washington State Ferries trip from Port Angeles to Victoria this season.

My Kalakala will dock here at 8:30 a.m., PDT, Friday, to inaugurate her summer schedule.

"On her return trip, leaving at 9 a.m., the ferry will carry an excursion sponsored by the Aged Pensioners Association No. 3, with a special reduced round-trip fare of $2.20 return.

B.C. History Of Pharmacy On Display

A spectacular panel display depicting the growth of pharmacy in B.C. over the past 100 years will be featured at the 67th annual meeting of the Pharmaceutical Association of British Columbia to be held at the Empress Hotel Wednesday to Friday.

Charles Burr of Victoria will be in the chair and some 400 delegates are expected. They will have the opportunity of visiting one of B.C.'s oldest drug stores—Shelbott's at 589 Johnson which was founded 62 years ago.

The display will show the contribution made by modern drugs towards lengthening life and lowering costs of medication.

Chief speaker will be Dr. Eric W. Martin, editor of the Journal of the American Pharmaceutical Association. Dr. Martin was a practising pharmacist in Vancouver in the 1930s before continuing his studies in Pennsylvania, where he obtained his PhD in organic and physiological chemistry.

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland will address the meeting of "The Century We Celebrate."

Topics slated for discussion at the convention are: Replacement of the current four-year pharmacy course with a five-year course; pharmacy as a vocation; veterinary and agricultural drugs; health insurance; inter-professional and public relations.

ASK THE TIMES

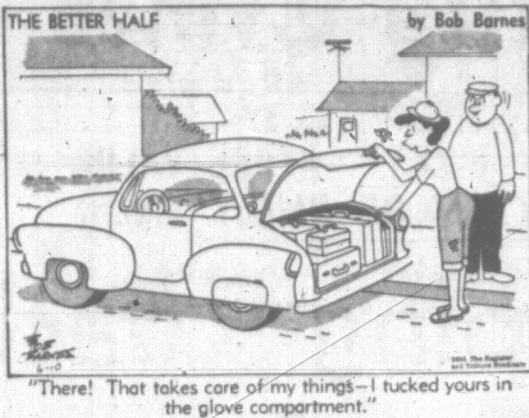

Q. Is there some way small chips or pieces of soap may be put together to form large cakes for easier handling?

A. Any method of melting the soap pieces together satisfactorily will suffice. Perhaps the best way would be to put the chips in a pot on the stove and, when melted, pour into a suitable cardboard container that can be stripped from the hardened soap and thrown away.

Q. I would appreciate it if you would publish the date the federal pension of $40 started; when it changed to $45 and when it changed to $55 a month. E.D.

A. The federal old-age pension of $40 monthly started in January, 1952; it was boosted to $45 in July, 1957, and to $55 in November last year.

For a quick "pick me up" when you're feeling "down," try using this Ceylon Orange Pekoe tea. It's a tasty drink and an inexpensive one! It's priced at $1.25 a pound.

Can mother escort bride to altar:

My former husband, whom I divorced some years ago, has never contributed to the support of our daughter who is to be married soon. Although he lives in a nearby town, he will not be present. I hate to think of my daughter going down the aisle alone. I was wondering if I could give her away, or should I ask my older brother to do it?

Louise Davis answers:

Ask your brother to escort his niece to the altar. You can still "give her away" from your pew by quietly indicating it when the question is asked during the early part of the service. I suggest that you mention this situation to the clergyman ahead of time. At the rehearsal, your brother would be briefed as to when to leave the bride's side and move into the front pew with you. It would be proper for an uncle to give the bride away as well as escort her, but as long as the mother is present there is no reason why she shouldn't do it. Who has a better right? However, I advise against marching down the aisle with your daughter. Your place is in your pew before the processional, even if the bride has to march alone.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You Have to Have 'Heart' To Succeed in Art and Life.

When asked what he believes to be the secret of what critics have called "The famous Elman golden tone," the distinguished violinist, Mischa Elman, replied, "Heart! That golden tone isn't just a matter of sound waves. It's a matter of what I, as an artist, feel toward the music and toward the audience as I play the violin, and what those feelings of mine do to listeners."

Mr. Elman believes that this quality of "heart" is the ingredient responsible for making any artist famous and loved. He said, "You can have the finest technician in the world but it is necessary to touch the heart of the listener, to establish personal rapport in order to be beloved by audiences."

"They do not come to concerts to listen to sounds. They come for some kind of an emotional uplift and that comes only when the heart is touched. That is as true of writing and the movies as it is of music, as true of paintings as it is of plays."

This writer believes it to be true of everything. Somehow sincerity and warmth and love of people and life get into music and into the printed word without any effort on the creator's part. This is also true in a thousand little ways in everyday life. It affects our friendships and family relations and our business successes. If we invest in warmth and keen awareness, life responds so richly and enthusiastically!

This makes me think of all of the June graduates who will soon go to their first jobs. You will make greater headway in your career if you actually are interested in the firm for which you work. You will enjoy your work more, too. In social life the same attitude is certain to win. If you are outgoing and understanding, if you give from the heart you will always have friends.

When it comes to love one must give and give from the heart in order to create any lasting romance. A lot has been said about "teamwork" in marriage. Successful marriage does require teamwork but unless the partners are emotionally involved with one another the relationship is more like a business partnership than a marriage.

We might all profit by listening to the great Mischa Elman when he says, "The heart is what matters!"

AIR FORCE CLAIM DISPUTED

U.S. Moon Shot 'Set for August'

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Lt.-Gen. S. E. Anderson, director of air research and development command, said today that the U.S. Air Force will "shoot for the Moon" in August.

Gen. Anderson told a press conference the air force will fire three "lunar probes" this year. The others are scheduled for September and October, he added.

He declined to disclose the size or weight of the payload the air force hopes to deliver. It will not be instrumented and will be intended simply to crash on the moon, he said, giving "some indication" of its arrival.

Three-stage rockets whose main power plants at takeoff will be modified Thor missiles that will propel the projectiles over a 278,000-mile course to the moon in 2½ days, Anderson said.

The Thor is a 1,500-mile-range weapon. At least 13 have been test fired and of these at least five have been successful.

Anderson said that even if the rockets miss the moon, they will become "real interesting scientific satellites" because their elliptical orbits will carry them far out into space and possibly around the moon and earth in a sort of figure eight.

(Roy W. Johnson, director of the defence department's advanced research projects agency, claimed in commenting on Lt.-Gen. Anderson's statement, that no final decision on moon rockets had been made.)

'To Peace by Easy Steps' Mac's Aim

BALTIMORE (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan called today for a start toward building world peace through a "little by little" approach to discarding all big weapons—atomic and others.

Macmillan addressed commencement exercises at Johns Hopkins University where he and President Eisenhower were given honorary degrees by the school.

Macmillan said the Western alliance has served well and must be continued as a shield against Communist aggression.

"But I am not without hope," he said, "that we may succeed little by little, if not all at once, in making some progress toward the relaxation of tensions in the world."

Macmillan said it would be foolish to expect any summit meeting to bridge the gap between East and West.

But he said it can be done "only if both sides are willing—we on our side certainly are willing."

Macmillan said both the United States and Britain have

ENGINE STARTED BY SURPRISE

Youth's Death In Plane Prank Shocks City

By PETE LOUDON

A runaway float plane at Elk Lake Monday night killed one of two boys who started the engine while playing with the controls.

He died instantly, the propeller severing his body below the shoulders.

An inquest will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at McCall Brothers funeral chapel.

The second boy, barely escaping the whirling blades, floundered in the lake for 10 minutes. Police took him to hospital, speechless with shock.

Dead is John Frederick Morrison, 15, of 620 Huxley.

The horrified survivor, Robert Turnbull, 16, of 3843 Rowland, was returned to his home after treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

His shock was reflected throughout Victoria today.

PIECED TOGETHER

From his account of the tragedy, and the stories told by two eye-witnesses who saw the accident from across the lake, police deduce the following:

John and Robert had been working all day at a berry farm. Returning home at about 5:45 p.m. they skirted the west shore of Elk Lake.

They saw the plane, moored about 25 feet from shore near a float recently installed by the newly-formed Victoria Float-plane Owners' Association.

A flat-bottom skiff, said to belong to a Bert Rogers, was tied to the float.

Robert told police: "We decided to have a look inside the plane."

He said it was open.

IN THE COCKPIT

(Later, plane-owner Victor Dawson, local electrical contractor, of Sluggert Road, said the plane was locked. "I have witnesses to that.")

Robert got inside the two-seater aircraft. John was partly in the cockpit, trying to hold the boat at the same time.

"We were touching everything," the police quoted Robert. Without any warning, the plane started, he told them.

John climbed from the plane on one side, apparently trying to get into the boat.

Robert jumped out the other side and swam for shore. He did not see what happened to John. He never saw him again.

The plane, with throttle apparently wide open, circled wildly, tugging against its mooring line. Twice it charged on Robert as he swam. Once it pinned him under its pontoons.

TREES MINCED

The plane plunged and dipped, circling three times. It scooped the small skiff on top of its pontoons. One bite of the propeller ate a section out of the after thwart. Then it broke loose and charged into the shoreline brush, mincing trees and bushes into pulp.

When police arrived, the plane was still sawing into the trees. The boat was across the pontoons.

Tragedy Could Have Been Worse

The distraught owner of a float plane which ran amok on Elk Lake thanked God today it didn't take off.

"It was a miracle the plane didn't take off and crash across the lake on swimmers or homes," said Victor Dawson, Sluggert Road, Central Saanich electrical contractor.

"At that speed, she'd have been off the water in 100 yards," he added. Luckily, the thin mooring line held. The plane, after striking a boy dead, nosed into the treed lakeside, killing its engine in a flurry of chips and sawdust.

Mr. Dawson said he was leading a sing-song at a Rotary meeting when police informed

Hot Dispute Over Planes On Elk Lake

Monday's tragic death of a 16-year-old boy in the spinning propeller of a float plane on Elk Lake came in the midst of a months-long argument between City Hall and the owner of the aircraft.

Only hours before the freak accident, the city legal department mailed a letter to the Department of Transport as part of an intensive study to determine how much control the city has over the lake.

The argument began April 21 when Victor Dawson, president of the Victoria Float Plane Owners' Association, headed a delegation that asked Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee for permission to establish a non-commercial float plane base on Elk Lake.

EDGELOW ALONE

The committee turned down the application after strong objections were taken by Saanich councillors George Chatterton and George Austin that aircraft would menace swimmers in the lake. Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was the only committee mem-

New Offer Made to Russians

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower proposed today to Soviet Premier Khrushchev that technical talks begin July 1 in Geneva on methods of policing any possible future ban on nuclear tests.

The White House made public a letter from the president stating the Swiss government has agreed to the Geneva site, which Eisenhower said would be preferable to Moscow from the U.S. viewpoint.

Khrushchev in agreeing to such talks had suggested they be held in his own capital.

Eisenhower told the Russian premier the U.S. would not object to the inclusion of experts from Czechoslovakia and Poland on Russia's side.

The Western powers participating, he said, would be the United Kingdom, France, the U.S. and possibly other countries.

Eisenhower noted Khrushchev has indicated Russia would not object to the inclusion of additional Western nations having experts in nuclear test detection.

With respect to neutrals, Eisenhower told the Russian premier "we have no objection in principle to their joining later in the discussions if it is agreed during the course of the talks that this is necessary or useful."

That might let such countries, as India into the talks.

Eisenhower suggested provision should be made for the talks to continue slightly longer than the three or four weeks which Khrushchev had suggested earlier in the Eisenhower-Khrushchev exchange.

This might be advisable to Canada Plans New Strategy In Event of War—Pearkes

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Correspondent

OTTAWA — A short furious period of intense fighting with great nuclear activity throughout the NATO countries and possibly on this continent is expected immediately following the outbreak of the next war.

Russian submarine fleets would attempt to break into the Atlantic to sink NATO vessels and to launch nuclear attacks against Europe and North America from off-shore.

Defence Minister Pearkes gave this concept of the beginning of the next world war when he outlined the role of the Canadian defence department at the Commons estimates committee Tuesday. The new concept had forced change in Canadian and American planning, he said.

The minister said the end of the manned bomber is not yet in sight. Russia was reported to have between 1,500 and 1,700 bombers.

Many were powerful enough to fly from Russia to Canada and drop their loads and return. Due to the rigidity of the intercontinental guided missile it would be many years, he believed, before Russia could depend exclusively on that weapon.

A balance of a division had been kept in Canada. Originally the plan was to hold it in reserve to be conveyed to Europe immediately after the start of the next war.

But with Russia having a known fleet of 500 or more submarines, some equipped to fire nuclear weapons inland and a few believed to be driven by atomic power, the NATO naval authorities had revised their strategy. Convoys the balance of the Canadian division through such a fleet of submarines would be too great a risk.

The plan to move the Canadians overseas has now been "downgraded." They will be held here as a reserve ready to be moved into action later and available for use in North America if necessary.

Meantime, the balance of the division was necessary in Canada to be used to rotate Canadian forces now stationed in Europe as part of Canada's contribution to NATO.

This continent would not escape attack in the event of another world war, Gen. Pear-

Saatchi constable Bob Kirby found Robert.

"He had apparently swum out again after the struggle to avoid the plane. He must have been in the water 10 minutes and was considerably north of the plane when he came out. He was suffering from shock and couldn't talk."

"I HEARD IT"

Across the north arm of the lake, two schoolboys watched the tragedy without realizing its seriousness.

Frank Gibbons, 18, of 536 Brookleigh, was doing his homework, three-quarters of a mile from the plane when "I heard it rev up..."

He went outside to watch the plane take off, he said.

"It was circling counter-clockwise, in circles 150 feet in diameter, and appeared definitely out of control."

It started a fourth circle, "... then it hit the boat. There was a shower of reddish-brown color which almost obliterated the plane—then it went round again, straightened out and went into the shore, and continued running there for 15 minutes."

THOUGHT IT WAS FIRE

"I thought he was on fire. I went and got my car. I saw police cars and knew someone had reported it. I told police what I'd seen and took them to Mr. Leckie's home (Ernest Leckie, 535 Brookleigh), who has a powerboat. His son and an officer went over in the boat and tried to shut the engine off."

The engine stalled of its own accord as it chewed into a heavy tree branch.

Robert "Butch" Cleland, 15, of 5020 Westleigh, was collecting on his paper route, also across the lake from the plane.

"I saw them move it so it faced out. I thought it was going to take off and thought I'd watch it."

"They started the engine up and it sounded full tilt right away. It started going in circles. Then I saw the shower of red..." I got on my bike and rode over here right away.

"I was the first one here. The engine was still running and the plane was advancing slowly into the bush. I saw the body. I was just going to get the police. I got up the road and saw two police cars coming in..."

MANY MORE CALLS

Constables Kirby and Ted Owens were first to arrive. They couldn't get near the plane until it stopped itself. They said numerous anonymous calls were received by the police, the first at 6:05 p.m.

After rushing Robert to hospital, Saatchi police set about the task of recovering the body of the dead boy. Grappling hooks and lamps were unsuccessful throughout the night.

Today, RCN skin divers assisted.

Mother of the dead boy, Mrs. Flora Morrison, collapsed when police brought her news of the tragedy.

"If you have any children," she sobbed, "take care of them while they are in their teens. They are very hard to keep track of..."

John, a student at McKenzie Ave. School until he started work recently, would have been 16 in October.

HERO OF RESCUE

There are six surviving brothers and sisters: Mrs. Herbert Barker; Herbert, Jimmy at home; Alan Morrison of Kemp Road, Sooke; Mrs. R. W. Davis of Vancouver, and Mrs. Joan McGraw of Langford.

Robert Turnbull was in the news last year when he helped rescue a boy from the Gorge. On June 19, 1957, he was one of three boys who rescued David Harvey, 18, 318 Uganda, who was almost drowned when he fell into the Gorge near the bridge at Tillicum Road.

Robert attended S. J. Willis School until just over a year ago.

1,726 Register For Grade One

Some 1,726 Greater Victoria children have been registered for Grade One classes this fall, school inspector John Gough said today.

In addition, 1,069 children have been registered for entry into nine kindergarten classes the Greater Victoria School Board hopes will be available this year.

Mr. Gough said current attendance in Grade One classes is 2,008 and "we expect to approach that figure when all the registrations for the fall are in."

He added that all parents who intend to enter their children in the school system for the first time this year should fill out registration forms immediately at the nearest elementary school.

The Royal Canadian Navy has been authorized to place orders for six new anti-submarine destroyers, instead of the four announced earlier.

The announcement was made at Ottawa today by George R. Pearkes, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, and welcomed here by shipbuilders who expressed hopes at least two of the six would come to Island yards.

Mr. Pearkes said the first keel in the new program would be laid this fall, but it was not decided which Canadian shipyard would be given the job.

Local shipbuilders said that, if contracts were awarded here, benefit in terms of jobs would not be felt for at least a year.

Meanwhile a spokesman for Yarrows Ltd. said 100 men were being laid off today on a temporary basis.

Layoff is necessary because of re-evaluation of the refit work being carried out on the coastal escort Winnipeg, contract for which was awarded several months ago to help keep the yard's work force together.

It is hoped the men will be recalled within a short time.

Yarrow's work force now stands at about 170.

pointed out. The modern submarine which the Russians had in large quantity were capable of cruising for long periods and could be stationed offshore to launch nuclear missiles against cities that were inland or on the shore.

GRAVE THREAT

The role of the Canadian Navy had been also switched. No longer was the emphasis on convoy duty, but on hunting out and destroying submarine packs, the minister said.

"One of the most important tasks confronting the NATO commanders will be to prevent the emergence of the Russian submarines into the Atlantic Ocean. Great importance is attached to maintaining effective control between Greenland and Iceland and between Iceland and Norway, he added.

The submarines constituted a grave threat to NATO convoys and surface warships but also posed a threat against Canadian and United States shores, he stressed.

The Royal Canadian Navy after it has served its role of hunting down and destroying submarines in the initial phases of the war will convert to the role of escort duty after the nuclear battles have been won, the minister said.

ber favoring the application, arguing that the base should be allowed at least for the winter months.

Three days later city council confirmed the committee's rejection of the application, over the protests of Ald. Edgelow.

Mr. Dawson, owner of the death craft, informed City Hall May 26 that the association intended to go ahead and use the lake anyway, operating from privately-owned frontage.

(The city owns only 90 per cent of the Lake frontage.)

"Elk Lake is presently represented on the international air maps of the world as an unrestricted area and it therefore is open to all pilots," Mr. Dawson wrote.

"Since your council has indicated through its reply that it is unable to co-operate in making available a portion of the city-owned property of the lake for this purpose, we are presently preparing for use a piece of property on the west side, clear of all obstructions."

STILL UNDER STUDY

The city legal department was instructed to make a thorough investigation of the city's powers over use of the lake when Mr. Dawson's letter was received. The subject is still under study.

Mayor Percy Scurrell and Ald. M. H. Mooney, chairman of the beaches and parks committee, both indicated today the matter was up to the department of transport.

But Coun. Chatterton called upon the people of Saanich for united action to stop Elk Lake from being used by aircraft or speedboats.

Unless they are controlled, "they will, with time, take over the lake and there will be more accidents with the area losing its recreational value," he said.

Mayor Scurrell said council had dealt with the situation as far as it could but "we can't control it. It's my understanding that it comes under the transport department."

Ald. Mooney said the D.O.T. "is the group that will have the final say on whether aircraft can be barred from the lake."

"I don't think council can discuss it until we have all the facts regarding the legality of aircraft using the lake."

Bombs Fly in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Seventeen bombs blasted shops and streets in Beirut Monday, killing three Lebanese.

The bombs were part of a terror campaign by rebel forces aimed at keeping shops closed and tension high in the five-week-old rebellion against President Camille Chamoun.

Bus Smash Kills 17

MAZATLAN, Mexico (AP)—An open-air bus loaded with a weekend crowd overturned and burned on a bridge near here Monday, killing 17 persons and injuring about 20.

A SURVIVOR IN THE RUINS

TORONTO (CP)—An elderly woman was led from her blast-shattered Bathurst Street apartment Monday night muttering: "Oh, my poor..."

Rescuers couldn't make out the name she was saying and at first feared a visitor was trapped in the ruins.

When the woman recovered from shock she told them she was worried about her pet canary.

A few hours later a digger searching for missing apartment dwellers uncovered a bird cage, twisted and crushed under the debris.

In it cowered the woman's canary—dusty but unharmed.

One Dead as Block Blows Up

TORONTO (CP)—A violent explosion knifed upwards from a basement boiler room and blew out the side of a four-storey brick apartment building on northend Bathurst Street Monday night.

One torn body was recovered from the rubble today after an all-night search by workers who feared at one time that eight persons were trapped in the massive tangle of bricks, mortar and shattered furnishings.

John Armstrong, 53, superintendent of the 30-year-old building at 1600 Bathurst Street, north of St. Clair Avenue, was found dead under a mound of rubble in his basement dwelling. Just before the body was recovered police located Mrs. M. McGee and student Len Bartlett, the last of seven persons earlier believed to be in the ruins.

Firemen and steel-helmeted construction crews continued to dig out the wreckage in case visitors to the building had been caught by the blast, which collapsed sections of all four floors.

Deputy Police Chief Joe Thurston, in charge of the search, said diggers uncovered a ripped-open furnace boiler which appeared to have been the origin of the terrific explosion.

Owner William Isbitzer, who valued the building at $250,000, said it will have to be demolished.

Despite the heavy damage there were few injuries to occupants. Mrs. Mabel Vicary, 57, Mrs. Ella Aldridge, 72, and Robert Veitch, 71, were treated at hospital for shock, cuts and bruises.

Police said 39 of the building's 48 occupants were in their apartments when the blast roared through the floors, peeling off most of the south wall.

and baring a dozen apartments to the streets.

Fire officials said tenants told them Armstrong was working on a furnace boiler Monday night with a plumber.

One official said an attempt may have been made to test the boiler without water in the heating system. Opening a valve to put water in the system could have resulted in cold water entering the hot boiler—the recipe for a giant explosion.

Victoria golfers, who ordinarily have nothing to be ashamed of, contributed less than $60 to the National Golf Week program.

It was a disappointing turnout for an event that directly aids junior golf development. Gorge Vale members contributed half of that amount as some 20 city shotmakers turned in net scores that matched or bettered those turned in by the champions.

Stan Leonard matched men's par and Betty Stanhope was two strokes under women's regulation figures as the two golf champions set the marks for other Canadian golfers to shoot for Saturday.

Leonard, CPGA champion from Vancouver, toured Edmonton's Mayfair course in 70 strokes. Miss Stanhope, an Edmontonian who holds the Canadian women's open and closed titles, fired a 76.

Two junior champions who played with Leonard and Miss Stanhope didn't win their cards.

Judy Darling, 20-year-old Canadian women's junior champion from Montreal, came in with an 84, while 17-year-old Bill Wakeham of Victoria, the national junior men's champion, had a 79.

Both Miss Darling and Wakeham had putting difficulties and their handicaps of four and three, respectively, did not bring their net scores below the gross totals of Stan and Betty.

Hole-in-one insurance funds at Gorge Vale and Cedar Hill were tapped at the weekend.

Mike Ott scored his first ace in 25 years of golfing when, using a seven iron, he dropped his tee shot on the Gorge's 145-yard 14th. Ott was playing in a foursome with Sandy Mitchell, Hugh McWhirter and Jack Storrer.

Jim Thompson, playing against Harry Barnes in flight competition in the club handicap championship at Cedar Hill, scored the other ace. It came on the 105-yard ninth Sunday afternoon.

Dickie Munn, the 15-year-old who captured the handicap championship in the Times Island Open tournament, has reached the finals of Cedar Hill's club handicap event.

Munn, who downed Jack Stokes in one semi-final, will face Ron Williams in the final. Williams had sidelined last year's champion, W. H. "Bill" Barnes, and then defeated Tom Johnson in the semi-final.

The Canadian Ladies' Golf Union has accepted an invitation to send a team of St. Andrews, Scotland, in June, 1959, for the first Commonwealth ladies' tournament.

Mrs. R. W. Laing, of Montreal, chairman of the inter-provincial teams, is to be chairman of the Canadian selection committee.

The team is to be named on the basis of performances during the current season. Each Commonwealth team will number six players, including the captain and a reserve.

SHORT CHIPS: Juniors and high school students who take in Friday's pro match between Stan Leonard and Al Balding, at Gorge Vale, can purchase tickets at the club for half price... the match, fourth leg of a five-city British Columbia tour for $5,000 in prize money, will open with a clinic at 4 o'clock... the match proper will start 20 minutes later... G. Weir, of Gorge Vale, turned in the best net score in the National Golf Week, a 61.

It's not like telling tales out of school, but golfers who ask for strokes from Dr. George Bigelow are hereby advised that his handicap has changed again... he's back to a 1, his second change in one week... a 1-under-par 68, Saturday, at Oak Bay, did the trick... he also came in with a par-matching 69 Sunday... his 68 round with a handicap (at that time) of 2, tied Dr. Bigelow with two other players for the half-way lead in the Todd Cup competition at Oak Bay... its Bruce Hopkins, 69-3-66, and L. H. Morrison, 76-10-66, are the other pacesetters.

Sproule's Sniping Spells Easy Win

Dale Sproule was a one-man gang on Monday.

Sproule, a regular high-scorer in midjet division play of the Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association, outdid himself Monday as he notched seven markers in leading his Saanich Farmer teammates to a 19-3 win over Victoria City.

In weekend action, Nanaimo teams fared poorly against Victoria teams.

In four weekend games against Victoria teams, Nanaimo failed to come up with a winner, losing one Saturday at home and three Sunday in Victoria's Stevenson Park.

Susan Eyeing Third Straight

Victoria's Susan Butt, who today is adding the spoils of a second straight tennis tournament conquest to her trophy shelf, aims her next volley in the direction of Vancouver.

And then the pert, 20-year-old tennis queen, who still hasn't lost a set in sweeping the singles crowns at the B.C. Public Parks and Far West Invitational tournaments at Vancouver, plans to "come home and practice real hard" for the Canadian championships.

Susan, the Dominion's second-ranked woman player last year, Mirja Peterson and Maureen Bray will head a strong Victoria contingent to the Vancouver City event next weekend.

The big Canadian title event will be played in Vancouver July 28-Aug. 3.

WILLEY WINS
Miss Butt won her second tournament at the weekend, defeating Bev Danby, 6-4, 6-4, in the Far West ladies' final, Paul Willey of Vancouver, who leaves June 18 to join the Canada Davis Cup team at Toronto, won the men's singles with a 3-6, 6-3, 6-0 victory over Art Jeffery, also of Vancouver.

Lee Dobson and Jocelyn Pease scored a major upset in the women's doubles. They ousted the top-seeded team of Marg McLean and Miss Danby, 6-4, 6-3, in the semis and then downed Claire Lovett and Natalie Hatch, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, in the final. Mrs. Lovett and Miss Hatch had upset Miss Butt and Pam Anstey in the semi-finals.

Miss Bray and Miss Peterson, participating in the Seattle City championships, missed their chance for weekend glory when they bowed to Jennifer MacDonal and Solveig Thompson of Seattle, 6-1, 7-5, in the ladies' double final.

Singles crowns in the American city meet went to a pair of Portland players, Bill Rose and Patty Miller, who also won the mixed title.

Miss Miller sidelined Miss Bray in the singles semifinals, 6-1, 6-3.

MEXICAN SOCCER TEAM HIT HARD BY INJURIES

'STOCKHOLM (AP) — Mexico's worried manager, Antonio Lopes Herranz, had five injured players on his hands today and a hard match against Wales in the world soccer championships only 24 hours away.

Fullback Jose Villegas suffered the only serious injury in the Mexican squad that lost 3-0 to Sweden Sunday in the opening, upset-filled round.

Villegas' leg was encased in plaster and he will not be able to play again for some time.

Gorge Vale Quartet Captures Team Title

Consistency didn't pay off for Mrs. S. Paterson of Gorge Vale Golf Club in the Mid-Island Centennial women's golf championship at Nanaimo Sunday.

The Gorge Vale swinger put together steady rounds of 41 and 40 to tie the Mrs. Jean Lusney of Comox for low gross honors in the 18-hole medal tourney.

However, Mrs. Lusney, who started with 44 and came in with a 37, took the title on the strength of a better score on the final nine holes.

The Gorge Vale quartet of Mrs. Paterson, Mrs. B. Thirlwell, Mrs. D. Naysmith and Miss N. O'Connell won the team title.

Low net honors were captured by Mrs. Marcia Galloway of Nanaimo, who had a 48-42 to go with her 25 handicap for a net 65. Mrs. D. Armour of Vancouver, a 30-handicapper who also finished with a 65, was runner-up.

Other prize-winners included: Mrs. M. Hollywood, Nanaimo, low gross, first nine, 38; Mrs. D. Naysmith, low gross, second nine, 38.

Algeria 'Rebels' Threaten Split With de Gaulle

PARIS (CP)—French insurgents in Algeria threatened a break with Premier Charles de Gaulle today as he strove to untangle France from a snarl of domestic and foreign problems.

A communique from the All Algeria Committee of Public Safety opposed his plan for local elections in Algeria within a month and demanded a housecleaning of political parties in France.

The communique was met with official silence here, but it was unofficially reported to have stirred up a deep suspicion that the Algerian right-wingers want nothing less than one-party rule in France.

The committee—formed after the May 13 revolt in Algiers—still holds extensive power in the French North African colony despite de Gaulle's notice to its leaders to relinquish their ruling role.

De Gaulle today outlined his plans for stabilizing the French economy in separate talks with union leaders and employers.

The general told a delegation from the Catholic Trade Union Federation he wants labor given legislative and not merely consultative powers.

De Gaulle also met a delegation from the powerful French Employers' Association under President Georges Villiers.

Villiers said he told the premier: "We believe in expansion. It may have to be a little slower than in the past as we have been growing too fast."

RENO, Nev. (CP)—Rene Beaudoin, former Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, was granted a divorce from his wife here today.

rightly held that a beginning can be made in controlled disarmament of both nuclear and conventional weapons.

"Control is really the essence," the British prime minister said.

URGES FREE TRADE

"Once both sides agree to experiment in this we shall have really made a start. We will have established a beginning of confidence. And confidence means peace."

Macmillan also called for aid to under-developed countries both in developing their own resources and in assuring them a high and stable demand at reasonable prices for their products.

He said he would like to see the economic and financial institutions of free countries in Europe, the Commonwealth and the Americas more closely related to one another.

"Only in this way shall we prevent our military defence being outflanked on the economic front."

Eisenhower and Macmillan on Monday held a closely guarded private session in the White House cabinet room.

It lasted 2½ hours and ranged widely—disarmament, nuclear testing, atomic power for peace, missile-launching sites in Britain, the Soviet economic offensive, the Atlantic pact, the jarring note of discord sounded in France. No details of the talks were given.

Macmillan confers again with Eisenhower at a White House dinner tonight, following an afternoon conference with State Secretary Dulles.

B.C. Deal Set With Ottawa On Road Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has reached "complete agreement in substance" with British Columbia and Saskatchewan on construction of access roads to resource areas, Northern Affairs and Resources Minister Hamilton said today.

Mr. Hamilton gave the information to the Commons committee on mines, forests and waters.

He said he has formally advised the two provinces that they can go ahead with their programs under joint federal participation.

The Crown's case is mainly built on documents Eversfield took from the files of Pacific Coast Services Limited when he quit his bookkeeper's job there in March, 1955.

The trial resumed after a brief adjournment Monday because of the illness of one of three women on the jury. She reappeared on the panel today.

Dryer did not ask Davenport to explain the significance of the documents he was identifying. In most cases the amounts of cheques presented to the witness were not mentioned, but in one case the accountant witness did mention that a cheque issued by the Schultz company to Pacific Jan 8, 1954, was for the sum of $10,000.

him two boys had started his plane, and one had been killed by the propeller. Police had searched over three hours for Mr. Dawson.

The owner was puzzled how untrained youths could start the plane. The motor was 24-hours cold. Fine priming adjustments would be necessary.

"You'd have to put a 40-pound pull on the starter."

He said his plane was locked, but a window was apparently "jimmied."

There were warning signs to trespassers on both the plane and a nearby tree. The seat of a boat used by the boys also bore notice to "keep away."

"But I'd rather give them the airplane than see something like this happen," added Mr. Dawson. He is a member-director of the Victoria Float-Plane Owners' Association. His plane is an Aeronca sedan. He flew it here from Red Lake, Ont., in March.

Mr. Dawson said he appreciated boys' curiosity about planes.

"I've often taken youngsters up, when they have their parents' written permission."

Damage to the plane may go as high as $1,000. The engine will have to be removed before it can be assessed.
